HATCHERY HIT BY LIGHTNING LOSS $30,000

Bellville Establishment Burns To Ground As Storm Brings Relief From Heat.

MERCURY, 92, RECORD SET

Village Firemen Battle Blaze In Rain; Several Thousand Chickens Perish.

Fire believed to have been started by lightning destroyed the McFerren hatchery at Bellville last night, resulting in a loss of more than $30,000, as severe electrical and rainstorms swept the Richland county area to bring temporary relief from a heat wave which set a season's record at 92 degrees yesterday.

Relief brought by the showers was only brief, however, since the mercury had climbed back to 83 degrees at noon today. At least four deaths in the state were attributed to the three-day heat wave

Rain No Help to Firemen.

Discovered about 11:30 p. m., the flames at Bellville consumed the large frame building while the village fire department and volunteer firemen attempted to curb the blaze. A heavy rain fell while the building was burning, but it was of no help to the firefighters. Several thousand chickens perished in the fire.

Carl McFerren, owner of the hatchery, estimated the loss of the building, chickens, feed and equipment would total more than $25,000. Also destroyed was a $5,000 brooder stove and $800 worth of surveying equipment owned by the Purdy Construction company of Mansfield. McFerren said only a part of the loss was covered by insurance.

Stores Equipment in Building.

The Mansfield construction firm, which had just completed work on the new Bellville bridge, had stored equipment in the building which was located near the bridge at the north end of Bellville.

A. B. and O. passenger train, due in Mansfield shortly after midnight, was held up several minutes at the scene of the blaze because of fire hose across the tracks. After giving up hope of saving the hatchery, firemen removed the hose and permitted the train to pass.

Although the temperature climbed rapidly this morning, last night's rainfall dropped the mercury below 70 degrees after a season's record was set in all parts of the state. Columbus reported 95 degrees late yesterday for the highest mark in Ohio. Cincinnati had 92 degrees and Cleveland, 91. Generally fair and slightly cooler

Scores Register, Transfer, Interest In Primary Rises

Increasing interest in the August primary election was shown today as scores of Mansfielders visited board of elections office to register or transfer before the deadline Monday.

Registration to establish voting eligibility must be received before 4 p. m. Monday, A. F. Porter, clerk of the board, said. Persons who have moved since the last election also must register their change of address with the election board to be eligible to vote in August.

Registration is required of all electors who have moved into the city since last November, those who have failed to vote at two consecutive general elections, and prospective voters who will be 21 years of age before election day, Aug. 9.

Voters must have one year's residence in Ohio, 30 days in the county and 20 days in the precinct in which they cast their ballots.

Registrations and transfers are received at the county board of elections office in the basement of the courthouse.

200 MORE JOBS

County Speeds Up Its Road Building Program.

Aproximately 200 more men will be put to work next week on road and bridge projects under the county's $1,000,000 WPA program, County Engineer Howard C. Sword said today.

The additional men will boost the total to about 350 workers.

Most of the workers are now employed on the North Bowman street road project and bridge improvements in scattered parts of the county.

The project next week will be extended to Washington township and later to other townships which have requested road improvements, Sword said.

SPEEDS DAVEY OUSTER MOVE

Ohioan Predicts 250,000 Will Sign Removal Petition.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Thomas W. McGlinchey, organizer for the Anti-Liquor league, predicted today that 250,000 persons would sign petitions calling for ouster of Governor Davey for "misconduct in office".

McGlinchey said offices were being opened in Cincinnati, Cleveland, Toledo and Youngstown and that "several thousand workers" would obtain the signatures for presentation to the Franklin court of appeals before the August primaries.

The anti-liquor leader said the ouster petitions were based on indictments returned against seven Davey aides for solicitation of campaign funds from civil service workers.

Mayor Rejects Hildebrand's Petition for Reinstatement

A petition, submitted by Ralph H. Hildebrand, former Mansfield patrolman, seeking reinstatement to the police department was flatly rejected by Mayor Claude M. Hunter yesterday.

Th petition, bearing the signatures of 130 persons, some of them prominent business men, was presented by Hildebrand who resigned from the force in November, 1936, following an altercation with former Police Chief Merle Unkle.

Hunter said he had told the former patrolman that he could not accept the petition because the matter of reinstatement was entirely out of the hands of city officials. He informed Hildebrand that more than a year had elapsed since his resignation and that he would have to "take his turn with the others."

The mayor explained that this meant that Hildebrand would have to file application with the civil service commission and take the examinations as anyone else

"If the petition is presented to anyone, it should go to the civil service commission which governs the matter of reinstatements," Hunter said.

Atty. George Biddle, secretary of the commission said the commission had not received the petition today and "I don't see what can be done about it if it is presented."

He added that Hildebrand was ineligible for reinstatement under the Ohio civil service laws.

"There's nothing the commission can do about it," Freh H. Huber, chairman, said.

NEW NO. 2 FIRE STATION TO BE BUILT AT LAST

City Gets Sketch Of Plans For Building That Won't Cost More Than $8,000.

PROPOSED FOR YEARS

Money Available, Structure To Be Erected On Site Of Present Engine House.

At long last—after years of planning and talking—it begins to look as though there would be a new No. 2 fire station in Mansfield.

At least that was the plan of the city administration today as it received a sketch of the plans submitted by the firm of Althouse and Jones, architects.

One-Story Brick Building.

The station, to be located on the present site of the engine house on North Main street at the Erie railroad, will be a modern one-story brick structure built to cost not more than $8,000—for that is all that the city can afford at the present time.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said today the specifications will be submitted to Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger next week for further study before placing the plans in the hands of city council for approval.

The building will be of the latest modern design finished in red brick, Styert said. It will be 42 feet wide and 43 feet deep and will have accommodations for one pumper, dormitory for six men and will include an office. A basement to house the heating equipment and a workship will be constructed below the dormitory.

Finished By December.

Styert said he planned to seek the approval of council at its next meeting permitting him to enter into a contract for the construction of the new station. He hopes to have the project completed by December.

The city has $8,000 which has been earmarked for the new building. City council early last year authorized the issuance of $4,000 in general bonds within the 10-mill limit allowed by law to meet the city's share of the cost when it was first planned to construct the station under WPA. Another $4,000 was set up in the 1938 appropriations bill, making a total of $8,000 available for the construction work.

Plans for the construction of the building by WPA last year fell through when a $22,000 estimate failed to reach council. Earlier in the year the $4,000 in general bonds had been issued when council had thought the job could be done for $11,000.

The plans for an elaborate station were drawn up by city engi-

THREAT FADES

Paraguay, Bolivia Forge Pact To Settle Dispute.

BUENOS AIRES —(U.P.)— Delegates of Paraguay and Bolivia put their initials on an agreement for arbitration of their dispute over the Gran Chaco territory today and removed the gravest threat to peace in the 14,800,000 square miles of the American continents.

For three years statesmen of the American republics, including the United States, had been working for a peaceable settlement of the dispute over boundaries of the wild, rich Gran Chaco jungle, to prevent a renewal of the long and sanguinary war between Bolivia and Paraguay.

A means of settlement was worked out because it was felt that the atmosphere of war now prevalent in Europe and in the orient must not be permitted to spread to the American hemisphere

HUGHES STARTS FLIGHT SUNDAY

NEW YORK—(AP)—Floyd Bennett airport officials today said it was "extremely unlikely" that Howard Hughes, millionaire aviator, would take off before tomorrow on a projected non-stop flight from New York to Paris.

Mechanics worked over his Lockheed 14 transport plane in a hangar, and officials said Hughes planned to make another test flight over the city to assure himself it was in topnotch condition.

Hughes, who tentatively had set this afternoon for his departure, remained noncommittal.

6 TO CONTINUE DEATH DEFYING RIVER JOURNEY

Scientists Undaunted After 18-Day Hazardous Trip On Dangerous Colorado.

(By International News Service)

LEE'S FERRY, Ariz.—Undaunted by their 18-day death defying journey down the Green and Colorado rivers, four men and two women said today they were ready to continue the expedition to its ultimate destination, Boulder Dam.

The party, feared missing for several days, arrived here in three boats late yesterday, tired, tanned but with high morale They had lost one boat in the Colorado, just after they left Green river, but that didn't bother them.

Refreshed after a good night's sleep and fresh food, the six adventurers said they were ready to start out again as soon as their boats and supplies were refurnished.

Members of Party.

In the party were Dr. Elzada Clover, University of Michigan botanist; Lois Jotter, her assistant; Eugene Atkinson, University of Michigan zoologist; Don Harris, U. S. geological survey engineer; W. C. Gibson, San Francisco photographer, and Norman D Nevills, of Utah, veteran river guide

They left Green Hat, Utah, on June 20 and had planned to reach Lee's Ferry some 300 miles distant, not later than July 4.

But they no sooner set out than their troubles began.

Just after they turned into the turbulent Colorado, the boat occupied by Atkinson and Gibson overturned in a swift whirpool. Atkinson clung to the boat and was swept downstream, while Gibson swam to shore and was picked up by one of the other boats.

Miss Clover and Nevills fought desperately through several treacherous cataracts to catch up with Atkinson and rescue him and retrieve the upturned 16-foot boat.

Miss Jotter, on shore during the rescue, was forced to spend a chilly night alone, wondering what had happened to her companions, but the next day one of the boats managed to work back up stream and take her aboard.

On July 5, the party beached and went ashore. They hiked to Rainbow Natural bridge, where they replenished their food supplies

Count Denies Rift Caused A Squabble With Brother Count

LONDON —(INS)— In the first statement he has given to any newspaper or news agency since his arrival in England, Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow today emphatically denied that his quarrel with Countess Barbara had led to any split between himself and his elder brother, Count Henry.

Informed that a story had been printed in the United States reporting a family rift, Count Court authorized International News Service to say for him

"Reports that a disagreement has occurred between myself and Count Henry are not true."

Owing to the fact that charges brought against him by his American-born countess are still pending in Bow Street court, the count felt compelled to confine his statement to that brief, but comprehensive denial.

Barkley, Bulkley 'Blessed,' President Swings Stump Tour West; Kentucky Told U. S. Needs Senate Leader More Than His Foe, Chandler.

(By United Press)

EN ROUTE WITH PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT TO OKLAHOMA CITY—President Roosevelt was expected to endorse this afternoon another New Deal senator seeking renomination in a bitterly contested primary. Yesterday he assisted Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky and Senator Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, and today, in a major speech in Oklahoma City, he was expected to speak out for Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma.

Mr. Roosevelt arrives in Oklahoma City at 5 p. m. (6 p. m. EST) and will be taken by automobile to the fairground where a large crowd will be waiting for him. He was expected to be greeted not by Thomas alone, but by Thomas' rivals for the Democratic senatorial nomination and Rep. Gomer Smith, who supports Mr. Roosevelt "when I think he's right," and Gov. E W Marland, who is a "100 per cent Roosevelt man." They were expected to be on the platform when Mr. Roosevelt gives his approval to Sen. Thomas.

Third Major Speech.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech will be his third major one in 24 hours. In addition, he spoke informally from the platform of his train in Louisville, Elizabethtown and Bowling Green, Ky., each time giving endorsement to Sen. Barkley as he had in his major speech yesterday afternoon in Covington where Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler sat, smiling, on the platform while the president extolled Barkley as a man beloved by all the country

Close friends of Mr. Roosevelt were elated by his reception in both Ohio and Kentucky, particularly by what they regarded the apparent success of his endorsements of Barkley.

At Covington, the president told 50,000 listeners that while he was not interfering in the primary campaign and he had no doubt that Chandler would make a good senator, "it would take him many, many years to match the national knowledge, the experience and the acknowledged leadership in the affairs of our nation of that son of Kentucky of whom the whole nation is proud, Alben Barkley."

To Chandler's campaign slogan that he had balanced the state budget, Mr. Roosevelt said he had done it with federal money.

Did a 'Good Job.'

"Your governor," he said, "deserves due credit for getting his state on a sound financial basis. He never came to Washington and went away empty-handed. And I say to him, and I say to you, that I have considered him a friend of mine and that I think he has done a good job as the chief executive of the state."

At the same time he discussed the New York state budget balanced this year by Governor Herbert H. Lehman who once was the president's "good right arm" but who opposed his supreme court reorganization program.

When he was governor of New York state, Mr. Roosevelt asserted that "because I could get no assistance from Washington, I was compelled to create state deficits to put the state treasury into the red in order to feed the destitute and give work to the unemployed, in order to care for the thousands of people who had become dependent on the state for food and shelter.

"And when I left Albany," he said, "the deficit of the state of New York was nearly $100,000,000."

At Elizabethtown, Louisville and Bowling Green, operating stops on the tour, the president talked to thousands. Those speeches were brief but in a similar vein, stressing that he believed it important to Kentucky and the nation that Barkley return to the senate. At Bowling Green, the last stop in Kentucky, he also paid tribute to Senator W. W. Logan, also a New Deal adherent.

Tells About 'Secret.'

Discussing Logan the president said: "I am going to tell you something that perhaps is a little premature but which you will know about some day.

"Someday when history comes to be written there will be recorded an episode in the life of Senator Logan—an episode that took place in the spring of the year 1938. Unhesitating, clear-cut action on the part of Senator Logan whereby, at possible personal sacrifices, he stood square like a rock—firm like a rock—against dragging the federal judiciary into a political campaign. That action on his part will be recognized as a splendid and spontaneous act of moral and ethical righteousness.

"By that act, Senator Logan stands for all time as an example of probity in public life, an exam-

'No Public Endorsement,' Says Bulkley of Roosevelt 'Pat'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Sen. Robert J. Bulkley said today he did not consider friendly remarks directed toward him by President Roosevelt as a "public endorsement," but George White, opponent of Bulkley in the Democratic senatorial primary, commented that they "didn't do any harm."

The president mentioned "Bob Bulkley," a staunch New Dealer, twice during an address at Marietta yesterday during the dedication of a memorial commemorating the founding of the Northwest territory.

Bulkley said "they were words of friendship and commendation for public service."

But former Gov. White said "it sounds like an endorsement to me."

"It was about as mild as he could make it if he meant it for an endorsement," White added. "But it didn't do any harm."

The president ignored the bitter gubernatorial contest between Gov. Martin L. Davey and Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, Democratic national committeeman. Both candidates boarded the special train, though Davey missed welcoming the president when a train delayed his automobile at a crossing. He joined the party later.

After the address, Davey went to the president's automobile, climbed in and sat down next to Mr. Roosevelt—where Bulkley sat during the ride to the park. A hurried, subdued conversation followed and, finally, the president, Davey, Bulkley and White all squeezed themselves into the rear seat.

Roosevelt's 'Nod' To Bulkley Draws Editorial Criticism

(By United Press)

On the editorial pages of many Ohio newspapers Friday and Saturday appeared comment on President Roosevelt's visit to Ohio. Most critical comment of editorial writers was in reference to the president's "nod" to U. S. Senator Robert J. Bulkley in his Marietta speech.

The president made it a point to commend Sen. Bulkley while making no mention of former Governor George White of Marietta, who is opposing Bulkley for the Democratic senatorial nomination.

The editorial comments included:

MARIETTA TIMES—President Roosevelt has indicated that he prefers the nomination of Senator Bulkley over that of Governor White. The probable reason for that is that it was Senator Bulkley, not Governor White, who supported President Roosevelt's supreme court packing scheme and was still sniping for it after the president realized that he had met defeat and had moved to a new front.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER —No attack on George White can be read into these words. . . . He is not campaigning as an anti-New Dealer against Bulkley. The situation is in this respect not a parallel of that in Kentucky. . . .

COLUMBUS OHIO STATE JOURNAL —They who study courtesy, fair dealing and politeness, will insist that by mentioning Bulkley in White's town, he gave

This hardy version of the slacks suit is equally good for picnics, hill-climbing or loafing in the sun. Forest-green, summer-weight, worsted gabardine makes it.

When it comes to the beach, the Chinese coolie's hat inspires something cool and comforting in green straw to shade eyes from the sun's glare. Bewildered City Editor Asks Miss Kerr About Rising Hems

MEMO TO EDITOR KERR:

I'VE seen several women in practically knee-length skirts in last few days, especially on Broadway. Are we going to have a repetition of the horrible short skirt days of '28 and '29? Why do women wear short skirts? Most of 'em look terrible Has it anything to do with hard times or foreign wars? Suggest story answering these questions to allay fears of American males (and females with unlovely legs). Thanks.—Ed.

MISS KERR'S REPLY:

Heaven only knows!

Skirt lengths, like other fashion whims, depend on such things as what's going on in the world, the psychology and manners of the moment and designers' desire to stimulate interest in fashions by changing them.

Hard times and foreign wars seem to have little to do with the question. The short skirt has been with us both in boom times and in slumps

The World war, in which women played a part, is credited (or discredited) with having had great influence in starting hemlines on the rise that brought the knee-length skirt.

There Was a War.

In 1914 skirts were about ankle length, figures were sternly corseted and the skirt and blouse idea was the favorite dress theme And then women went to war and were never the same again. They gained new freedom that set its stamp on their clothes as well as their minds. The work they did in hospital and canteen was hard. Anything which hampered it was pruned away.

Long hair was cut, confining corsets limbered or eliminated altogether and skirts which swept up debris were shortened.

The Armistice was signed and women came home with a preference for short locks, short frocks and one-piece dresses that didn't part company in the middle.

Then came suffrage, which was, probably, a psychological factor in influencing women to accept the "freedom of the shorter skirt."

Designers hopped on the bandwagon, showed shorter skirts in their collections and before long they became the rule.

The show was on!

During the twenties, skirts shortened until Fifth Avenue and every other "civilized" thoroughfare became a sea of pink-stockinged legs—knock-kneed and otherwise. Men, who had cheered the first raising of the curtain began to find the pageant palling. They muttered in offices and in their wives' ears. Columnists, cartoonists and parsons preached. They might as well have saved their breath.

Whatever Goes Up—.

Women went serenely on, snipping an inch or two off their skirts each year Some did it because they had beautiful legs, others because they always follow fashion, others—just because.

When it came to the point where women could scarcely sit down in their skirts, something had to be done. Patou did it. He dropped the hemlines one hot August day in 1929. The reverberation could be heard around the world

Staid clubwomen, who a decade before would have gasped with horror at the idea of wearing a knee-length skirt, now led mass-meetings in which women speakers protested that women would "never go back to the slavery of skirts which swept up the dirt in the street."

(Men took no part in this act of the show. They merely looked on from the side lines—undecided whether to be sorry or relieved.)

When the smoke had cleared away in 1930, skirts were found to be instep or floor-length in the evening and six to nine inches from the street by day.

The show was over!

You Can See.

Now, after an interlude of comparative peace, it threatens to begin again. Ask almost any woman today if she would return to the knee-length skirt and she will reply with horror, "Never!"

But look at the hemline of the skirt she is wearing and see how few inches it already lacks of touching her knee.

Wife Faces Step-Child Problem

By VIRGINIA LEE

I wonder sometimes what girls who marry older men who have been married before expect to do about all the problems they are likely to meet. I suppose they don't realize there will be a number of complications that would not be if they were marrying bachelors nearer their own ages.

For instance, Joan is 26 and married to a man of over 40 who has a son 13. The child's mother has been dead since he was two years old, and he has lived with this relative and that, and has never been taught obedience or consideration for other people. She complains bitterly about the child and doesn't want him to live with them. Of course it is a hard situation for her. Few young women her age know how to manage young boys. It is hard enough for an own mother to get along with adolescents. They often have trying times for a while.

The point is, no girl should marry a man so much older without considering the situation carefully and making up her mind whether or not she is equal to it. Is that too much to ask or expect of a woman in love? Joan knew the man's family and disliked them—complicating matters still more. She is also expecting a child of her own before long, which makes things harder for her. However, she says she loves her husband and he loves her, and she feels sure he would not leave her, even if she refused to have his child in their home.

I think, my dear, that you will get much more satisfaction out of life if you will consider this motherless boy as your trust. You can do a great deal for him. You say he is disobedient and impertinent. Have you tried to win his love and confidence? Maybe the relatives he has been living with have not your standards. If you are nice in your ways and keep on trying, maybe he will grow more mannerly. Think how you would feel if you had been left motherless so young. Try to make a home for him and praise him for the smallest things he does right instead of finding fault. Don't you see that by doing so you may win him over to WANT to please you? Love and appreciation are what make anyone—child or adult—try to be nice.

You want your coming child to be happy and to grow up to be good and lovable. Trying to help your husband's child will be excellent training. You are young and doubtless attractive, and so would have an easier time making this little boy love you than an older and less charming person would. Please try it.

ORANGE MARMALADE ROLLS — Two cups flour, threee teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, two tablespoons sugar, one cup milk, one-fourth cup melted butter or margarine, orange marmalade or other jam. Grease muffin pans, melting butter in one of the pans. This will make about 18 muffins, depending on their size. Sift flour, measure and return to sifter. Add baking powder and salt as they are measured. Beat egg, add sugar, milk and melted fat. Beat together well. Add dry ingredients all at once, stir just enough to mix. Turn into muffin pans, filling them two-thirds full, put a small spoonful of orange marmalade in each muffin and bake in an oven 425 degrees until nicely browned and baked through, from 20 to 25 minutes. Strawberry jam, or any thick jam may be used instead of the orange marmalade.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

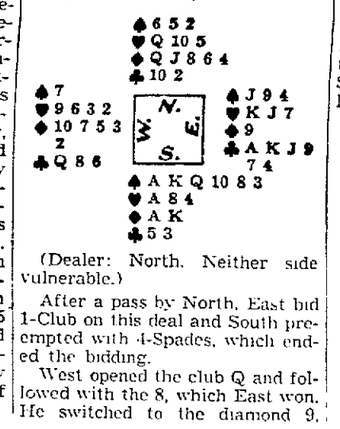
"The Authority on Authorities"

TRY TO OUTGUESS HIM

Don't let the declarer put one over on you if you can help it. If he leads a card which you can ruff, perhaps he is doing it intentionally, trying to tempt you. Sometimes the cards you see can make it perfectly clear that such is his plan. In a spot like that, don't fall for his trickery. Show him that two can play at that game.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

After a pass by North, East bid 1-Club on this deal and South preempted with 4-Spades, which ended the bidding.

West opened the club Q and followed with the 8, which East won. He switched to the diamond 9, which South took with the K. Two high spades were next led, the declarer hoping fervently for a two-two split so that he would have a trump entry to dummy to cash two diamonds, to provide for two heart discards, as it seemed certain that East's side trick for his bid was the heart K.

When the suit failed to break, South led the diamond A, hoping East would trump. He did, and from then on declarer had no trouble cashing the remainder of the tricks. Had East refused to trump, South could not have avoided the loss of two hearts and two clubs.

Warm Days Ideal For Clearing Skin

By JULIET SHELBY

Central Press Writer on Beauty

WARM WEATHER is the ideal time to clear up sallow skins, occasional pimples, enlarged pores and other disfiguring blemishes. The most important factor in a skin clearing regime is to go on a skin beauty diet. It is easier to go in for your first treatment in the summer, because you naturally don't crave heavy, rich, foods as much in hot weather as you do in cold. It really is better to have lighter meals when the temperature is rising, so you will not only be doing your skin a world of good, but you will find that you feel cooler and more comfortable while on your complexion clearing diet.

Since skin loveliness comes from the inside, even the most expensive facials, the best cosmetics and the most thorough external cleanliness cannot make your skin perfect unless it is clear and healthy. So give yourself an internal treatment in addition to your usual skin care.

Here is a good intensive diet that will do wonders toward giving you the type skin you have always longed for. If you are a lady of leisure or a housewife you can try it any time, but if you are a business woman it is best to do it over a long week-end.

Replace your usual luncheon and dinner foods with fresh vegetables and fruits. They are easy to get and very inexpensive during the summer. If you choose to eat them in salad form don't go in for dressing, or make a French dressing of mineral oil and lemon juice. And cut down on your condiments.

Drink Fruit Juice.

Drink all the fruit juices that you possibly can — grapefruit, orange, lemon and tomato juice are all excellent. Eat small amounts whenever you are hungry instead of waiting for set mealtimes and having large portions of food. This is a system of frequent feedings that is used for babies, and it will work very well for you also.

The large quantity of liquids that will be taken into your system will give it a thorough cleansing. Even if you can only try it for one day you will see results, but it should be continued for two or three days if possible.

You will find that your whole body will benefit from this diet and especially your skin. When you have completed this plan and gotten your skin back into clear healthiness you can go back to your normal diet. But be sure to get at least ten glasses of liquids every day between your regular meals. Have four big glasses of fruit juice and six of water. If you make a habit of drinking liquids, you'll easily be able to keep up the good work that you started with your three-day diet.

To prevent small rugs from slipping, sew discarded jar rings under each corner.

Scissors will tarnish if you do not dry them after cutting the stems of wet flowers.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

As Roderick put his impetuous query, I mentally commented, and not for the first time, that he had something of the same flair for the dramatic which his sister, Mary, possesses to so high a degree.

A stranger, looking at him, and not knowing the reason for his emotion, would have averred stoutly that he had just received some tragic, shattering blow destined to affect the rest of his life. His eyes were wide-opened, with suffering mirrored in them, his face was twisted into tragic lines, and his voice was so tremulous that his question was more a wail than a query.

Dicky shot a quick, apealing glance at me, and I knew that, in his own parlance, he was "sidestepping the issue," and wished me to deal with the situation.

There was no manner of use dealing with it in public. I knew that, and bracing myself for the ordeal, I rose and crossed to Roderick.

Talk in Study.

"Suppose we talk this over in the study, Roderick," I said, and I felt a qualm of guilt, though I knew it to be unjustified, at the sudden hope in the boy's eyes.

It was a hope that I knew it was merciful to kill at once, since there was no possible way to grant his request, and I spoke quickly, with decision, but trying to invest my refusal with tenderness.

One preliminary I allowed myself, an appeal to his memory.

"Roderick, darling," I said, drawing him to me when I had closed the door after us, "have you ever known me to refuse you anything that would not hurt you or anybody else if it were within my power to grant it?"

The light of hope went out of his eyes, as if somewhere in his brain a shutter had clicked, covering it.

"That means I can't go to see Mary," he said dully. But I noticed that he did not try to get away from my embrace, and I tightened my arm about him.

"I'm afraid it does," I told him. "But I know you'll understand when I tell you that your going along this time might hurt Hank."

His eyes changed to animated question marks, but he did not speak, and I hurried on.

"You know when a person is sick and goes to see a doctor he shouldn't have anybody with him except somebody to take care of him. Bill is going along to do that. Of course, as he has to stay somewhere all night, it is best for him to stay at Mary's hotel. But there won't be any time for them to visit. They'll get in late tonight and go straight to bed, and Hank will sleep until just time to get over to the specialist at 11. And then they'll come straight home. It won't be like a regular visit at all."

He was impressed, but not convinced, and I played my trump card.

Promises Him Trip.

"I know you are going to be my own brave, considerate boy about this," I said, "and, in return, I am going to make you a promise."

He looked at me with sudden, hopeful attention, and I went on recklessly, although I did not know just how I was going to make good my promise.

"I do not know just how soon I can do this," I said, "for Mary is very busy studying her role and must not be disturbed. But just as soon as I can manage it, I am going to have you and Junior come in for a whole day and night in the city at the hotel."

"Oh!" He drew a long, quivering breath of sheer delight, and I knew that I had "struck twelve."

"You may have a visit with Mary," I hurried on, "for as long as she can give you. Then the rest of the time we'll see the sights of New York."

"Will Uncle Dicky go along?" he demanded disconcertingly, yet I should have expected the query, for Dicky's escort always has been ready for them, and his companionship is a never-failing delight to them.

"I am sure he will," I promised rashly, feeling that I might as well lose my life as a sheep instead of an innocuous little lamb, and then I moved toward the door.

"Don't you suppose Uncle Dicky is about ready for that romp he promised you and Junior?" I asked guilefully.

Today's Recipes.

MINCEMEAT BROWNIES — One cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth cup melted butter or margarine, one cup light brown sugar, one egg, one-half teaspoon vanilla, one-half cup mincemeat. Nutmeats may be added, a quarter of a cup being sufficient. Grease a shallow eight-inch pan. Line with waxed paper and grease it. Sift flour, measure and return to sifter, add baking powder and salt as each is measured. Melt butter and measure, return to saucepan, stir in brown sugar gradually, mixing it in well. Add unbeaten egg and beat vigorously. Add Vanilla and mincemeat. Sift in dry ingredients. Mix well. Turn into prepared pan, bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees Fahrenheit, about 40 minutes. Turn out on a wire rack, remove waxed paper, sprinkle with powdered sugar and when cold, cut in squares.

When angel food cake is made, the egg yolks can be beaten, stored in refrigerator and used several days later.

HOROSCOPE

For Monday, July 11.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a particularly lively and interesting day, with much stirring about on short trips, and possibly with sentimental and romantic affairs claiming the attention. Nevertheless there may be some contracts to be signed, and these are promising, provided there be not an excessive outlay of funds. This also applies to pleasurable indulgences.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a progressive and pleasant year, with much activity, short trips, new business and contracts, all of which should prove profitable if given proper consideration and not carried off too expansively in ideas or in extravagance.

A child born on this day may be disposed to be a "high flyer" both in business and pleasure, unless given an early outlook against over-expansiveness and extravagance. It may live beyond its means, but should maintain a respected and responsible status.

For Sunday, July 10.

Sunday's horoscope holds token of rather conflicting conditions, with much working at cross-purposes, but generally lively and happy affairs. There may be disagreeable angles concerning the emotions or intimate relationships. Yet, there may be a stabilizing of the fortunes with the prospect of sudden changes in pursuit of progress and pleasure.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a rather conflicting year, with the prospect of strife, breaking up of old sentimental affairs, travel, and much activity and satisfaction in the pursuit of pleasure. Surprising adventures may happen in this direction, and there may also be an event that will result in putting the fortunes on a firm foundation.

A child born on this day may have rather contradictory traits of character, with much impetuosity, self-indulgence and contrariness. But, at the same time, it may be rather adventurous, romantic, likeable and much

CHAPTER XV

Mr. and Mrs. Sunny Tucker were entertaining at Sunday dinner in their new house in Douglaston.

"Fancy," Mignon sighed, "an old married couple of one year! You've borne up wonderfully, Sunny, what with acquiring a wife, a son, and fame and fortune all in 12 short months!"

Jed grinned broadly.

"Dog my cats, if he hasn't now! Still smilin', too."

Moleen, bending over the crib of Jed Patrick Tucker, clapped her hands.

"He—smiled, Daddy! Truly he did!"

Sunny hurried to the crib.

"No foolin'? I think you imagined it. Do they smile when they're only three weeks old?"

"Let's let the godmother decide this momentous question," Mignon joined the parents.

"I'm a better judge, maybe," Jed drawled dryly, "with nine brothers and sisters."

He stroked his chin. Young Jed made another grimace.

"See! I told you," Moleen said excitedly.

"I hate to disillusion you," Jed grinned, "but it looks like a little touch of colic to me."

"Shame on you," Mignon laughed. "Have you no imagination?"

Moleen sighed happily.

"Wouldn't it be wonderful," she put her arms around her beaming husband, "if every year of our lives could be like this one?"

"Any way can't I be?" Mignon picked up the baby's hand and kissed it. "Of course, the excitement of being the most sought after band musician in the country is bound to wear off some day."

"We've got to sooner or later," Jed chuckled, "that another dog will have his day. But I'm not letting it happen to me now."

"You shouldn't!" Moleen smiled. "Starring in a Broadway show—two hit pictures this year. No matter who comes along the oldtimers will always look back and remember when Jed Patrick was the Gentleman Hillbilly on Broadway and Sunny Tucker's the greatest swing band in the country."

Sunny bent over, his hand on his back.

"Yes by cracky, them was the good old days!"

"It—all happened so suddenly," Molly smiled dreamily. "Everything was so strange, as if it were all a pattern that had to be worked out. I ran into Jed's arms in a doorway in a storm. Mignon picked me up in Central Park when I was ill. We took Jed out to meet Sunny and Minnie made him ask Jed to sing."

There was no mention of Charlie Farro, although for a few seconds a small cloud came between them.

Molly said suddenly, "Jed, come out and let me show you the garden. I—I want to talk to you."

He looked down at her, surprised.

"Dirty work afoot," Sunny grinned after them.

"Shush." Mignon picked up the baby. "Now I have a chance to hold the infant. Don't you tell Molly."

"Help yourself," Sunny offered proudly. "I don't imagine he'll break."

Watching her, Sunny's face sobered.

"Minnie," he looked down at the lovely blond girl with the baby in her arms, "you ought to have a dozen."

"I—I'd love to, Sunny," she sighed softly. "But I guess I never will."

Sunny walked over to the window. Molly and Jed were sitting on a bench among the roses.

Jed grinned affectionately.

"Well, what have I done now, Molly?"

"It—isn't what you've done, Jed." Molly looked away. "It's what you haven't done."

"Well, now suppose you tell me what it is, and maybe I'll do something about it."

What Moleen had to say wasn't so easy. If Jed really weren't in love with Minnie, it would be embarrassing. Suddenly she plunged.

"Tell me, Jed," she put her small hand over his, "do you care for Mignon?"

Jed was taken completely by surprise. He dropped his head.

"I—what good would it do me if I did love her?" His voice sounded strained.

"That's not answering me," Molly said firmly. "Do you or don't you?"

Jed looked up. Moleen was shocked at the pain in his eyes.

"As long as I live," he said miserably, "there'll never be any one for me but Mignon."

"Then," Molly flared at him, "why in the name of goodness don't you tell her so! You idiot!"

Jed shook his head.

"I've wanted to—a hundred times. But what would she want with a hillbilly like me?"

Moleen sighed. "You crazy man! Do you want her to die with a broken heart? Can't you see she has gone around for a year with her heart on her sleeve, waiting for you to see it. Oh, Jed, you're such a fool."

Jed looked incredulous.

"No—foolin'? Do you really think she'd have me? That the district attorney would give his consent?"

"Tom Laine would be tickled to death to have you for a son-in-law, you big silly." Moleen gave him a little shove. "He told me so. I'm going to send Mignon down here and if she doesn't come back engaged, you can just go home without your dinner."

Mignon was putting little Jed back in his crib when Moleen walked in the door.

"Caught." Sunny smiled guiltily. "But I told her I didn't think she'd damage him just this once."

"Aunt Minnie may hold him all she likes," Moleen reached up and kissed the surprised Miss Laine. "Jed would like to see you in the garden, honey."

Mignon hurried out. Sunny tilted his lovely wife's chin and searched her eyes.

"Mommy! What have you been up to, holding hands with that man down in the garden?"

Molly led him to the window.

"You'll see." She hugged her spouse rapturously.

Down in the garden Mignon walked into Jed's waiting arms.

Simple Training Rules Make Dog Companion.

Follow Easy Training Rules.

What a lovable pair of pups! As obedient as they are high-spirited, they're a real credit to their mistress' care and training.

Yet they're the first dogs she's ever owned. What's the secret of her fine success in handling them?

She didn't attempt training too soon. Ten months is the ideal age at which to start. She played with her pets, won their respect and affection first.

Then she limited lessons to a half hour in morning and afternoon, followed by a carefree romp. To avoid confusing her pupils, she trained them one at a time—using short words of command like "Come," "Lie down," "Shake hands," "Speak."

She was quick to reward a correct response with a friendly pat, a morsel of some canine delicacy.

Our 32-page booklet gives complete rules for training your dog. It tells how to feed and groom him; how to treat common dog ailments, check distemper.

A Farmer's Diary

By Calvin A. Byers

THE SUMMER KITCHEN

THE house where I was born had a huge summer kitchen located just across a stream of spring water from the back kitchen door. A wide foot bridge connected the two buildings.

A "summer kitchen," in case you do not know, is a large room where almost all the household cooking, washing and canning work is done, so that the housewife's regular kitchen may be kept cool and spotless. In short, the farmer and his family practically live in the summer kitchen as long as the weather is not too cold. It is a pleasant custom. Ours had been a two-room dwelling made of logs . . . the original cabin of a settler. It had a mammoth fireplace with a brick dutch oven at one side. The backlogs for this fireplace were dragged in with a horse. Doors for the animal's entrance and exit were at the sides of the huge chimney.

My earliest recollections, as a hungry little boy, are of the savory odors of that summer kitchen. A table was spread at one side by a window, and there we used to eat . . . the simple, ample food of farmer folk. In fall the kitchen was festooned with strings of apples drying; huge "pokes" of dried corn hung there on the rafters; bunches of mint, catnip, sage, various garden herbs, were seen there, too. Our milk and butter were kept in the adjacent springhouse, where clear water flowed all the year round.

Farm kitchens in most parts of the country are different now. But still, among the hills, I sometimes see . . . and it gives me a homesick twinge . . . a real old-fashioned summer kitchen.

'MEBBE IT WAS ANOTHER GUY NAMED JOE,' SAYS KEARNS.

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—Oh, oh! Steve (Crusher) Casey, the well-known burper, is threatening to bring two wrestling brothers and another member of Clan Casey (this 'un is a heavyweight boxer) to this country in the fall. . . . May the saints preserve us! . . . The coaching firm of Kelly and Kelly (Mike and George) is helping Casey Stengel keep those Boston Bees in stinging distance of the first division. . . . Suspended for five years by the Illinois athletic commission, Jack Kearns said: "They would pick on me . . . usually I'm guilty, but this time I ain't." . . . Mebbe it was another guy named Joe.

Ouch Dept.: Henry Holt, pitcher for the Charleston club of the South Carolina semi-pro league, got an old pair of Van Mungo's shoes off Mungo's dad. . . . Then he went out there and won the opening game of the season from Pageland—which just happens to be Mungo's home town! . . . And here's a couple of extra ouches for Van's pop. . . . Kansas folks say "Ho hum" when they start talking about the reported Glenn Cunningham-Archie San Romani feud. . . . Papers in other National league cities are carrying special features on Bill McKechnie, manager of those surprising Cincinnati Reds.

Triumph In 10th

Indians, Led By Hale, Open St. Louis Series With 8-7 Overtime Victory.

CLEVELAND — (U.P.) — Sammy Hale made only three hits in 25 times at bat during the recent series with Chicago and Detroit. Manager Oscar Vitt benched him. Johnny Kroner failed as a replacement and indications today were that Hale would remain at second base for the remainder of the season.

Hale, definitely a player who may determine pennant chances of the Cleveland Indians, signalized his return to the lineup yesterday by pacing the Tribe to an 8 to 7 victory in 10 innings over the St. Louis Browns.

Gain Undisputed Lead.

The victory enabled Cleveland to go back into undisputed possession of first place with a full game lead over the New York Yankees who lost to Boston.

Hale paced Cleveland's 16-hit attack with four safeties in five trips to the plate. His fourth hit, a sharp single to center, drove home Lyn Lary with the winning run.

The Indians had to make a long, uphill fight to grab the decision. Earl Whitehill, veteran southpaw who has been out of action for a month, started in the box for Cleveland and was hammered hard. He was nicked for six hits and five runs in three innings.

After Whitehill departed Vitt used Johnny Humphries, Al Milnar and Mel Harder in relief roles and all responded with fine performances. Humphries gave up two hits in two innings, Milnar none in 1⅔, and Harder 1 in 3⅔ innings.

After Whitehill left the box, St. Louis grabbed one run in the fifth and another in the eighth.

Send Oral to Showers.

A big four run splurge in the fifth inning sent Oral Hildebrand, the Browns' starting hurler, to the showers. The Tribe then added two more in the sixth and another in the seventh. The winning counter in the tenth came just as it appeared rain would force the umpires to call the game.

The clubs were to meet here again today with Bob Feller and Howard Mills as the opposing pitchers.

GREENBERG, SAWYIER IN ALL-CHICAGO FINALS

GAMBIER — (AP) — The Western Juniors' closed tennis championships at Kenyon college developed into an all-Chicago finale today. Meeting for the junior singles title were first seeded Seymour Greenberg and fourth-seeded Calvin Sawyier, both of Chicago.

Rookie's Showing Wins Praise

Hurling spectacular ball in relief roles, Johnny Humphries of the Cleveland Indians, has been given a new contract covering 1938 and 1939, with a raise in pay. Manager Oscar Vitt has installed the youngster from Clifton Forge, Va., as the Tribe's No. 1 game saver. Many baseball observers say Humphries is faster than Bob Feller, the young speedball flinger from Iowa.

Foresters Trim Wesco Club; Schoolmasters Stop J. A. C.

THE CATHOLIC FORESTERS continued their fine play in the Y. M. C. A. Club softball league yesterday by defeating the Wesco club, 10 to 6, at North park. The Foresters tallied five in the sixth to cinch the decision.

Lump, with a home run, triple and single, led the Foresters' attack at Gilde scattered the losers' eight blows.

Five home runs featured the Schoolmasters' 10 to 8 victory over the J. A. C. club at Prospect park. Kibler, Saltis and Baumgardner hit home runs for the Schoolmasters, and Moorman and Stefanek clouted circuit drives for the losers.

The game went into 11 innings, with the Schoolmasters scoring three in the first of the 11th to win. Kibler and Thoms each obtained three hits for the Teachers. Stefanek, Moorman and Pealer led the J. A. C. attack.

Zents' Radios trimmed the Knights of Columbus, 9 to 7, in a game played under protest at Liberty park. "Bugs" Wehinher and Leo Hetler of the K. of C. club were banished by Umpire Yarman for disputing decisions. Hazlett hit a home run for the winners.

Legion Opens Second Half With Columbus Club Sunday

Durant Undecided On Hill Selection For League Tilt At Fairground.

MANSFIELD baseball fans will be offered their first chance to see the Federal Glass club of Columbus in action this season when it comes to the Fairground at 2:30 p. m. Sunday to help the American league club open the second half of the Central Ohio semi-pro league.

The Columbus club, which boasts of one of the strongest lineups in the circuit, finished second in the first half, a half game behind the champion Newark team.

Harry Fishbaugh, who formerly hurled for the Columbus Red Birds, or Nelson Mettles, who blanked the Legionnaires in the first game of the first half, will start on the mound for the visitors.

Manager Dewey Durant has not selected his pitcher, but has Harold Geiger, Donald Dudley and Howard Patterson available.

The Federal Glass includes many players who are widely known in state pro and semi-pro circles.

The outfield will consist of Tom Leonard, who once performed in the American Association: Orva Myers, formerly of the Western association and Clarence Henson.

Earl Fenner, first; Tom Collins, second; Elmer Zang, third, and Howard Beals, short, form the infield, with Harry Lamberson behind the plate. Collins is one of the leading hitters of the club.

The Federal Glass club has been one of the outstanding teams in Columbus for many years. It won the Saturday afternoon league title four years in a row, and won the Central league crown last year. The club is managed by Terry Ellis, a former catcher of the Piedmont league.

Durant plans no lineup changes for Sunday's game.

Hi-Speeds Entertain Akron Team Sunday

Seek 10th Victory of Season Over Yankee Juniors At League Park at 3 P. M.

EARL HERRICK'S HI-SPEEDS, fresh from an opening round victory in the Wakeman semi-pro baseball tournament, move into League park Sunday to face the touted Akron Junior Yankees in a single game at 3 p. m.

The Mansfielders will be seeking their 10th triumph of the season against the dangerous Akron club which has dropped only 11 out of 40 games played this season.

"Lefty" Ellis of Greenwich, recently signed by Herrick, will go to the mound Sunday for the Hi-Speeds. It will mark the second time this season that Pete Beer, ace righthander, has not started on the hill for the Mansfield club.

Beer, who sports a brilliant record of 10 wins and one defeat, hurled the Hi-Speeds to victory over the Sandusky Clover Leafs at Wakeman Thursday night, and Herrick intends to give the speedball artist a rest until Tuesday when the club returns to Wakeman.

Among the players to face the Hi-Speeds Sunday are John Joyce, a catcher, and Garrett Coey, third-baseman, who will get tryouts with the Akron Mid-Atlantic club next season.

Others on the roster are Mike Feduniak, another catcher; Jo Kapzath, centerfielder, who had a try-out with Milwaukee in the American association and Bloomington in the Three-Eye league this spring, and Ben Flossie a former University of Detroit football and baseball star, who may handle the pitching assignment for the Juniors here Sunday.

Liberty Park mixed nine walks with five hits to defeat Friendly House, 10 to 6, in a city recreation Senior baseball league game at Liberty park yesterday. Friendly House scored all of its runs in the fifth inning of the abbreviated game, and it was necessary for the Parkmen to rally in the first half of the sixth to triumph.

Brightbill was also wild, and gave the losers eight passes, but he struck out seven and yielded only four hits. Rose of the Friendly House hit for the circuit.

DENNY SHUTE POINTS FOR THIRD PGA WIN

SHAWNEE-ON - DELAWARE, Pa.—(AP)—Denny Shute, for two years master of the nation's pros at their own game, match play, has a chance to take rank with two of the game's all-time greats when the 1938 P. G. A. championship opens tomorrow with the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds. If Denny can repeat the victories he scored in 1936 at Pinehurst and in 1937 at Pittsburgh, he, Walter Hagen and Gene Sarazan will be the only players to have taken the pro crown more than twice.

McCarthy's Convinced No. 10 Is His Jinx

NEW YORK—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, the astute manager of the world champion New York Yankees, today was convinced that the number ten is his jinx.

McCarthy has won three American League pennants and a like number of world championships, during eight years at the helm of the powerhouse Yankees but never over that stretch has one of his teams been able to win more than nine games in a row.

The Yankees reached nine straight in the first game of a double-header against Washington last Monday and then played to a 4 to 4 deadlock in 13

President In Oklahoma After 'Blessing' Bulkley And Senator Barkley.

ple of which all Americans should be proud, an example of which I and the people of Kentucky are proud."

There was no immediate explanation of this reference. Sen Logan was in Washington but could not be reached during the night.

Mr. Roosevelt's route today took him through Arkansas and observers centered speculation as to what he would do in the case of Senator Hattie Caraway, Democrat, who is up for renomination and faces a primary contest. She has not always supported the New Deal.

White House attaches announced that Sen. Caraway would board the train some time today.

Mr. Roosevelt studied reactions to his Kentucky and Ohio speeches and also reports submitted to him on the Indiana political situation by Sen. Sherman Minton, D., Ind., who boarded the train last night in Louisville for the two-hour ride to Bowling Green

While Minton claimed his visit was of no particular significance it was understood he had indicated to the president that Senator Frederick Van Nuys, his colleague, would be renominated by the party organization at its state convention Tuesday. Van Nuys opposed the president bitterly on the supreme court issue.

Visits With Son.

Mr. Roosevelt will leave Oklahoma City at 6 p. m. (7 p m. EST) and arrive in Fort Worth, Texas, five hours later. He will stay over Sunday at the home of his son, Elliott Roosevelt, there and Monday will go on to Pueblo, Col., and thence to San Francisco.

At Covington, Mr. Roosevelt claimed "a clear right to tell you certain facts relating to the national government and national problems which I believe to be true."

He said that charges and counter-charges had been made in Kentucky of coercion of federal employes and relief clients in behalf of one candidate or another.

"Let us assure you," Mr. Roosevelt said, "that it is contrary to direct and forceful orders from Washington for any federal government employe to tell those under him how to vote and I trust that those same rules apply to those who work for or under the state of Kentucky."

When the train stopped at Louisville Mr. Roosevelt appealed again in Barkley's behalf and reminded a crowd of 5,000 who greeted him, of the government aid during the disastrous Ohio river flood there two years ago.

Clears Roosevelt's Remarks About Logan.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler, it was revealed today, proposed to President Roosevelt last spring a plan whereby Sen. M. M. Logan, D., Ky., would accept a judicial appointment to create a senate vacancy which Chandler would take instead of opposing Sen. Alben W. Barkley.

In a letter written to Logan last February, made public today by Logan's office, Mr. Roosevelt wrote that he informed Chandler that he would "not traffic in judicial appointments in order to satisfy the ambitions of one office seeker."

In New York, Logan said Chandler and his administration sought to persuade him to accept a circuit court position.

"The idea was that Chandler would step into my post and that would leave Barkley without opposition," Logan said.

The letter was made public less than 24 hours after Mr. Roosevelt in a speech at Covington, Ky., threw the full weight of his influence behind the campaign of Sen. Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., to win re-nomination over Chandler in the Kentucky primaries.

Grown-up Jackie Has New Role

An almost-grown-up Jackie Cooper, only faintly reminiscent of the courageous little chap in the film classic "The Champ," makes his appearance in the screen version of Lloyd Douglas' "White Banners" at the Madison tomororw. Jackie, who has grown by leaps and bounds in the past two years, is shown here with Fay Bainter, who plays the gentle, philosophical Hannah. Young Jackie is one of the few child players who has managed to retain his popularity through his "awkward age"

FORECASTS 'PUSH BUTTON' ERA FOR AMERICANS IN 25 YEARS

(By United Press)

EL CENTRO, Cal.—Life for the average American citizen 25 years hence will be largely a matter of push buttons, according to Allan A. Norin, inventor. America will have attained the "push button age."

"If he is hot," says Norin, "he will punch a button to get cool; if he is cold, he will punch a button to get warm.

"If he is hungry, he will push a button and Presto! a T-bone steak. Within the next 10 or 15 years, I expect all of our food to come either frozen or out of cans. The days of milking the family cow will be definitely gone and soon it will all be a matter of dairies supplying milk to firms that can it."

Norin was born and reared in Stockholm and came to the United States in 1921 to take a position as an engineer. Before that he had worked in Stockholm after finishing mechanical school

"There is no telling where the mechanical age will lead," he said. "The five years of depression have not held back mechanical developments and many great companies already have inventions of the utmost importance on hand to put on the market when the time is ripe."

Norin said honors are divided between the United States and Europe for inventions. He himself has 24 inventions to his credit. He feels that Europe definitely holds the lead in the developments of automobiles and Diesel engines while America leads in airplanes and other mechanical fields

"An old steam engine in my father's brickyard started me in mechanics," he said. "I tore it apart so many times that even now I can remember every piece of it."

This, he said, helped him at one time to become chief engineer for the Hanna Engineering Works, but more recently he has concentrated on those inventions and developments that will realize eventually what he predicts will be America's "push button age"

Kinsey Players Will Open With Rural Comedy

Opening a three-week engagement in Mansfield Monday night the Madge Kinsey Players will present modern plays and revivals of old melodramas, among them "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "East Lynne" and "Tempest and Sunshine."

The company will set up its tent theater on West Second street, near Sturges avenue, and will present three new shows a week. The cast is practically the same as that which played Mansfield last summer, headed by Madge Kinsey as character actress, Ellen Douglas and Jack Irwin as leads Jo-Ann Davis, ingenue, and George Colbert, juvenile lead. David Heminger is the character man of the repertoire company and Otto Imig the "Touby." Harry Graff rounds out the roster of adult players.

Bette and Jean Kinsey Graff, children of Madge Kinsey and Harry Graff, and the third generation of Kinseys to play "the road" in Ohio and surrounding states, head the list of younger player. Others are Esther and Mary Jane Davis and Kathryn Fortener.

The company will open Monday with "Down On The Farm," a "Touby" show (Touby's a country character with freckles and red hair), and on Wednesday will change to "She's My Baby." Friday and Saturday, the company presents "What Every Daughter Learns."

"Having Wonderful Time."

Marc Connelly's New York stage show, which ran for more than 47 weeks before it was taken on the road, comes to the screen as a vehicle for Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, jr. It will be her last "straight" picture before doing another musical with Fred Astaire "Having a Wonderful Time" is good summer fare, it's gay and light and nothing much to remember afterward. Two young people meet at a summer camp and fall in love despite the fact that they have nothing on which to marry. After a lot of merry complications, common sense is thrown to the wind, just as everyone hopes it will be. Red Skelton, former Mansfield man, makes his first screen appearance in this picture in the sort of role he's been doing in vaudeville. Miss Rogers is fresh from her triumphs in "Vivacious Lady" and young Fairbanks won many new followers with his work in "Joy of Living" and "The Prisoner of Zenda." Their romantic comedy opens at the Ohio at the midnight matinee tonight.

"White Banners."

The third Lloyd Douglas novel to reach the screen is his "White Banners," and the film version of it is booked for the Madison for the first half of the week. Previously his "Magnificent Obsession" and "Green Light" were hit pictures. Douglas, a minister before he began writing, frankly admits that each of his engrossing novels is a sermon. In "White Banners" he preaches his sermon through the noble, gentle and understanding character of Hannah, the house-to-house merchant of kitchen ware who enters a home as a servant, but by her own high courage and fine character soon shapes the philosophy of the entire family. Fay Bainter plays Hannah, and Claude Rains has a different type of role from the ones associated with him, as the small town school teacher. Jackie Cooper and Bonita Granville, Kay Johnson and others are in the cast.

"Sailing Along."

Jessie Matthews, the darling of the London films, is starred in "Sailing Along," at the Majestic tomorrow and Monday. The beauteous Jessie has a role in which she can display her particular talents, singing and dancing. The entire action revolves around her efforts to get a foothold on the London stage, her failures, and finally her almost certain success. But romance, which dodges her career, steps in again. Roland Young and Jack Whiting are featured with her. The second feature is "High Command" with Lionel Atwill, a story of the Irish Rebellion. The action begins with the Rebellion, but moves on 17 years to the time of the British occupation of South Africa. A dramatic, human drama is unfolded.

"Rebecca" at Ritz.

Shirley Temple is a charming and talented Rebecca in the picture which bears the title of Kate Douglas Wiggin's well known story, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." While the pictured story bears little or no resemblance to the novel itself, it is an entertaining film and a tailor-made one for Shirley. It gives her opportunity to sing and dance and even to revive some of her old song hits. Romance, represented by Randolph Scott as a radio producer and Gloria Stuart as a girl in the country, flourishes throughout the action. Jack Haley and Phyllis Brooks provides a bit of Hi-de-ho. "Rebecca" will be the Ritz offering the first three days of the week, starting Sunday.

Paul Revere's name originally was Apollos Rivoire. His father, who came from the Isle of Guernsey in the English channel, Anglicized it.

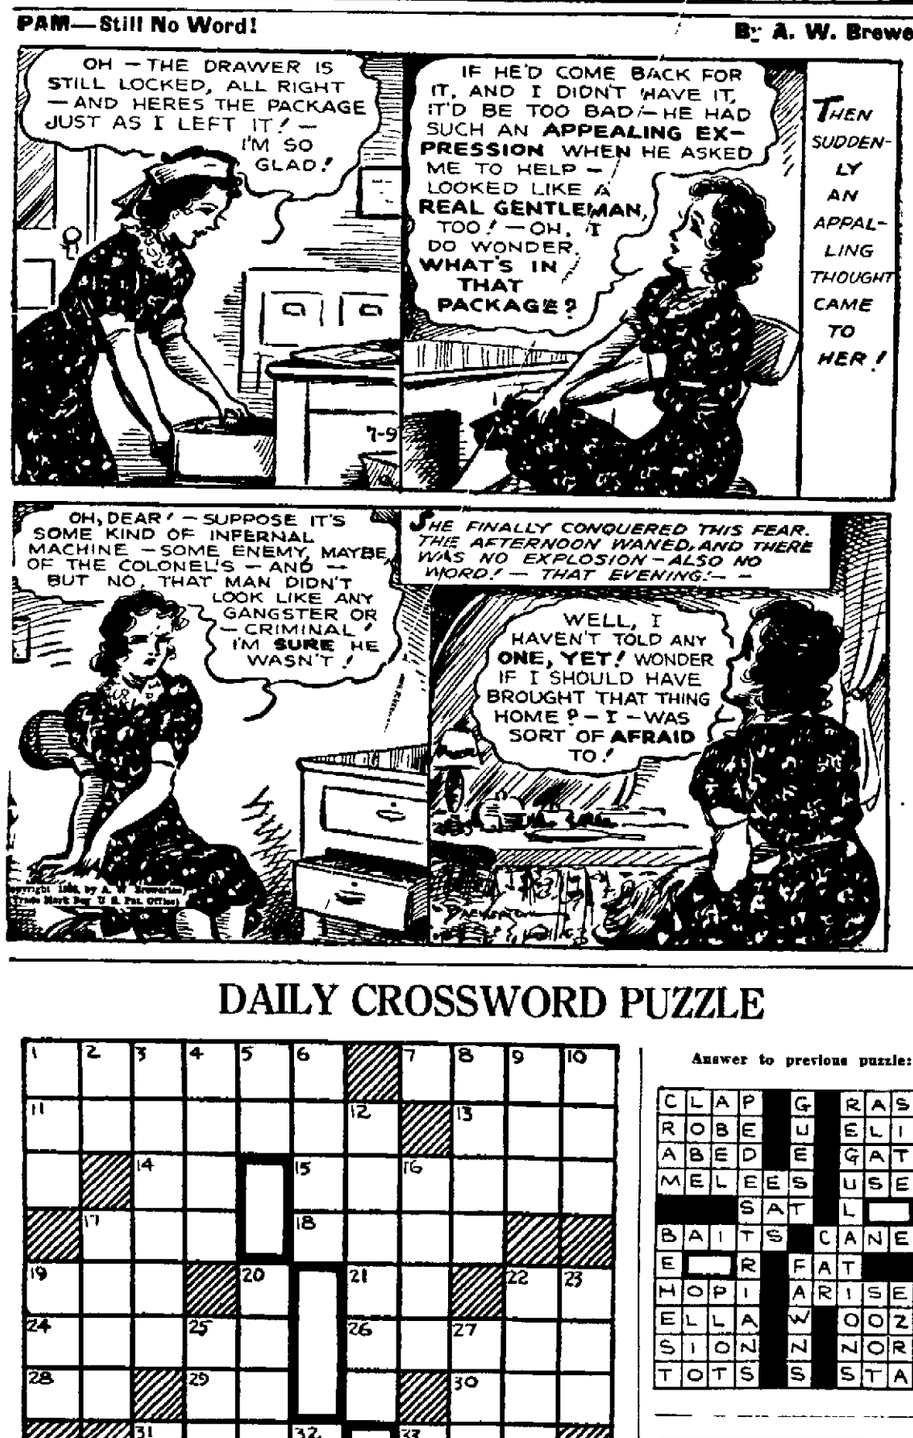
PAM— Still No Word! By A. W. Brewerton



OH — THE DRAWER IS STILL LOCKED, ALL RIGHT — AND HERES THE PACKAGE JUST AS I LEFT IT! — I'M SO GLAD!
IF HE'D COME BACK FOR IT, AND I DIDN'T HAVE IT, IT'D BE TOO BAD! — HE HAD SUCH AN APPEALING EXPRESSION WHEN HE ASKED ME TO HELP — LOOKED LIKE A REAL GENTLEMAN, TOO! — OH, I DO WONDER WHAT'S IN THAT PACKAGE?
THEN SUDDENLY AN APPALLING THOUGHT CAME TO HER!
7-9
OH, DEAR! — SUPPOSE IT'S SOME KIND OF INFERNAL MACHINE — SOME ENEMY, MAYBE, OF THE COLONEL'S — AND — BUT NO, THAT MAN DIDN'T LOOK LIKE ANY GANGSTER OR — CRIMINAL! I'M SURE HE WASN'T!
SHE FINALLY CONQUERED THIS FEAR. THE AFTERNOON WANED, AND THERE WAS NO EXPLOSION — ALSO NO WORD! — THAT EVENING: —
WELL, I HAVEN'T TOLD ANY ONE, YET! WONDER IF I SHOULD HAVE BROUGHT THAT THING HOME? — I — WAS SORT OF AFRAID TO!

LIGHT MARKET RECOVERY LED BY AIRCRAFTS

Appetite For Aviation Shares Spurred By Heavier Building Indications.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Buying in aircrafts brought mild support for other selected issues in today's stock market, but the recovery struggle was difficult for many recent leaders.

Among favored stocks gains ran to a point or so at the close, although numerous minus marks were in evidence.

Dealings were relatively quiet throughout, with transfers approximating 600,000 shares, the smallest turnover since June 18.

Boardrooms were only sparsely populated as most commission house customers expected little in the way of any definite move either way during the brief proceedings.

The appetite for aviation shares seemingly was spurred by the belief of some the new federal civil aeronautics act would contribute a stabilizing influence for air transport companies and result in heavier plane building and greater passenger traffic.

Nibbling at the steels was in line with prospects for a substantial upturn in mill operations next week after the sharp drop coincident with Independence day suspensions. Motors came forward at the finish.

Best share performers included Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Curtiss-Wright "A," Glenn L. Martin, United Aircraft, United Air Lines, Wright Aeronautical, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Kennecott, American Smelting, Phelps Dodge, Chrysler, General Motors, Yellow Truck, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, North American, National Biscuit, and Electric Power & Light.

Bonds and commodities were slightly mixed.

City Gets Sketch Of Plans For Building that Won't Cost More Than $8,000.

neers at the direction of former Service-Safety Director Philip Wolfe, after the state fire marshal had said that the present structure was to be condemned.

However, the plans never reached council and the project was apparently dropped.

The present frame station, on North Main street just north of the Erie railroad, is more than 30 years old and was formerly a part of the Ohio Brass company. The land on which the station is situated was deeded to the city only two years ago but the building is still the property of the Ohio Brass company.

STUDIES REPORT

Franklin Prosecutor To Decide On Action In Highway Probe.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—The recent report of the governor's professorial board on the highway department was studied today by Ralph Eartlette, Franklin county prosecutor, to determine whether criminal action is warranted. Meanwhile, Highway Director John Jaster indicated changes are impending in his department but denied any knowledge of Governor Davey's reported intention of removing him.

DUCE SEES WAR

Fascists, Communists to Decide Fate of Europe, He Says.

ROME —(INS)— Eventual war between fascist and communist nations "to decide the fate of Europe" was foreseen by Premier Mussolini today.

In the preface to a book reviewing the work of fascism and the fascist grand council during the past fifteen years, Il Duce described the war in Spain as "The first clash between fascism and communism and its democratic allies."

On the morning of the 6th, they set out again and had little trouble until they reached Lee's ferry.

On the trip, they saw three white men at two different ranches, and once they passed three Japanese gold miners operating along the river before they go into the steep-walled canyon.

At one portage they reported that they had found an inscription made by the famous Powell expedition in 1869.

Gasoline Dealers Seek Agreement On Uniform Prices

While Mansfield gasoline dealers sought today to agree on a more uniform price level, motorists in the city were assured of reduced fuel prices over the weekend, ranging from 16½ to 19 cents for the "regular" gas.

Prices which were cut from a half cent to one cent per gallon yesterday throughout the city, remained the same today, and W. D. Clauss, a director of the Independent Gasoline Retailers' association, said independent dealers planned no further cuts. They are charging 18½ cents.

He said about 55 independent dealers had agreed not to cut below 18½ cents if it meant reducing the dealer's margin of profit to below 3½ cents per gallon.

"We can't give the same kind of service and continue to operate for less than 3½ cents a gallon," Clauss said.

The Standard Oil company, which was understood to have led the reduction parade, held at 17½ cents for regular gas and 19½ for high test.

The Fair Price stations were charging 16½ cents, the same as yesterday. C. L. Hartenfels, operator of a number of Hi-Speed stations in the city area, said his stations were charging 18 cents for "regular" and 20 cents for high test gas.

CHARGES NAZI MOVEMENT HAS HINDERED PROGRESS OF ART

(By International News Service)

PITTSBURGH — The progress of art in central Europe has been hindered by the Nazi movement, Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Tech, said here after a pilgrimage to the old country to select paintings for the Carnegie International Exhibit.

Referring to Austria, he declared:

"I visited there just before the plebiscite. It is not a place to find art just at present, for all the war excitement has slowed up art, although it certainly has not stopped it.

"Germany, too, is a bitter place for artists. It is attempting to support artists; but it makes the fatal mistake, not of supporting the kind of art it does like but of suppressing all the art it does not like.

"Art does not thrive on verboten signs or on blood-and-soil propaganda, but on a little sympathy from the social order, and this contemporary art is not receiving it in Germany today."

In Italy, birthplace of many world-renowned artists of past and present, "art is successfully nurtured by the government," he said. In England, art is still headed by the Royal Academy which evinces "sound technical excellence but needs to free itself from many inhibitions."

"France," Saint-Gaudens continued, "is rushing in every artistic direction at once."

The Carnegie Tech director said he did not visit war-torn Spain but that he did attempt to assemble a selection of Spanish paintings from refugees who had fled from that territory.

Japs Demand Removal of U.S. Ships In Yangtze River

Not That It Matters

Government Medicine; Countess Barbara Again; Know Famous Women?

—By JANE WILLIAMS

IN THIS week's "March of Time," which was shown at a local theater the first half of the week, was an interesting, although far from enlightening, visualized discourse on the plight of the American doctors.

It merely touched on a problem that confronts the medical man today—that of socialized medicine. The medical profession finds itself (as I understand it) in that well-known position known as being between the devil and the deep blue sea.

On one side there are millions of Americans who need medical treatment and who can't pay for it just as they need food and clothes and housing and can't pay for them. And there are thousands of men trained in the science of medicine who could administer to that need. There is the demand and there is the supply, living practically side by side in every city, town and hamlet in America. But how are they going to be fitted together?

But on the other side of the problem is socialized medicine. Which is much, much more than meets the eye.

THERE are many medical men who are naive enough to believe that a plan might be worked out whereby they might serve indigent cases, send the bill to the government with a "please remit before the 15th of the month" and the checks would come rolling in.

BUT it can't be worked out that way, and it never will be. The minute the government starts paying the public health bill, that minute sees the beginning of regimentation in public health—we've a fairly good start towards it now.

And that means that a large portion of the medical profession will become a political subsidiary of the government. That's when a physician's politics will mean as much in his success as his scientific knowledge. If he's on the right side of the political fence, he'll get his share of indigent cases.

When the government starts paying medical bills, it will also start "regulating;" passing laws, rules and regulations that will more or less bring the profession under government control.

Medical men are frankly concerned, and well they may be. Because they know that if they can't work out the knotty problem themselves, the government will—with the usual political interference.

NIGHT CLUBS are agitating again for longer night hours—or rather morning hours, because, they maintain, they can't make enough profit before 1 a. m. to operate. Which means, according to their own reasoning, that enough liquor can be sold between 1 and 1:30 a. m. to make their business profitable.

Perhaps they will get an extension; it depends upon how much "pressure" they can bring to the authorities, but the one big factor they are overlooking is public opinion. City council may or may not decide to extend the night club closing hour in Mansfield—but city council will do only a small part of the voting when and if the issue of local option is placed on the county ballots.

I believe that if Richland county voted on a wet and dry issue now, we would have "local option" prohibition again. Most of Ohio is dry now, by special vote of the citizens. And local option has just about as many bad features as a wide open liquor town.

In antagonizing public opinion by asking for later closing hours, the night club operators are merely leading with their chins. If they are socked at the polls they can blame themselves.

THERE is nothing unusual in Barbara Hutton "squelching" her husband by telling him that she could marry a man who would be Emperor of Germany one day, in event of Hohenzollern restoration. A lot of wives use the weapon of the "men I could have married, or could marry right now if I wanted to." The embarrassing phase of Barbara's taunt is that it became public and the man she hurled at her husband's head denies romantic interest.

Considering that the Ten-Cent Princess in the Ivory Tower became engaged to her first husband while he was married to her friend and that she was engaged to her second husband before divorcing her first, and that she plagues her second husband with threats of a third who is "better" than he—one wonders if a ten-cent-store paddle, applied vigorously in the right place, say twice a day, wouldn't make a happier and better princess of her.

THE Ohio Newspaper Women's Association is compiling data for a three volume history of the outstanding and noteworthy women of Ohio, its author to be Ruth Neely France of Cincinnati. I have been assigned to select the women of Richland county and their history, whether they are living or dead, who may have left their mark on their times either in industry, education, or law, medicine, social service, music or drama, as pioneers or business women.

Plenty of men, but very few women have I found. If you know of any woman who should be included in a history of Ohio women, please send me her name, a little something about her and some source of information concerning her.

Sawyer Calls for Reforms, 'Clean House'

RETURN HONEST GOVERNMENT, HE TELLS AUDIENCE

Davey's Opponent Urges Halt In 'Debauchery of Public Service.'

(By United Press)

CINCINNATI — An appeal to Democratic voters to "demonstrate" that their party "cannot remain the tool of a few mercenary individuals" was made here last night by Charles Sawyer, opposing Governor Martin L. Davey for the gubernatorial nomination.

Inaugurating a series of weekly radio broadcasts to continue until four days before the primary election, Sawyer urged a willingness to "reform our party from within" instead of being "forced to do it from without."

"The time has come when the Democratic party should again go before the people with a program of public service," he said, not emphasizing alone party advantage and the number of jobs that can be given but, with emphasis upon good government, and with an unqualified promise that we will:

"Halt the debauchery of public service.

"Restore the principles of the merit system.

"Insist upon honesty and impartiality in the letting of public contracts.

'Eliminate Racket.'

"Operate the state liquor monopoly as a business and not as a racket.

"Honestly try to do what we can for the aged who are penniless and not play upon their heartstrings and keep them in a constant state of uncertainty between hope and despair."

Sawyer said that from the standpoint of party success in the fall elections alone the Davey administration carried "terrific handicaps."

"This election will not be won by good wishes on July 8 but by votes on August 9," he added.

Sawyer contended that "organized labor" is opposed to the governor in this campaign, although he said "a futile effort has been made to divide the support of labor and to make it appear that some elements of labor favor my opponent."

"He (Davey) has been so sweet to the American Federation of Labor within the last month or two that it has been sickening," Sawyer said. "But nobody has been fooled by this effort and least of all the rank and file of the American Federation of Labor."

Up and Down THE STREET

In an attempt to give game authorities an opportunity to study the habits of birds, Charles Kimmel, Richland county game warden, today appealed to sportsmen killing birds that are tagged to turn in the bands to the conservation department or game associations. Many birds have been tagged in Ohio and surrounding states for the purpose of study. Kimmel said that recently a starling released in Louisville, Ky., had been shot in this county.

Richland county commissioners, who took a lot of joshing a few weeks ago when they ordered the south side of the courthouse lawn spaded up and re-seeded, have produced the evidence that they knew what they were about. The new lawn, which at first looked spotted and thin and caused criticism, has developed into the best looking corner of the courthouse property.

Three boys crowded onto one bicycle the other day but the strain was too much. One of the tires was punctured five miles out of Mansfield. They'd gone out route 30-S to look at a motor boat in some one's barn. The 10-year-oldsters had five miles to walk, a crippled bike to "lead" and the temperature was way up toward the 90 mark. But they remembered that the Gages flying field was in the vicinity and that where there's a flying field there's sure to be mechanics. So they took the bike over to the airport and asked for "service." They got it, without cost, and rode back to the city in more or less comfort.

Harold W. Arlin, president of the Mansfield board of education, very nearly became the "sacrificial example" this morning when a party of Mansfield citizens were being shown conditions of city school buildings. He was leading the group into the dark "rest room" at Hedges building in which the concrete floor is uneven and patched, when he turned his ankle on a small ledge. He stumbled headlong but caught himself before hitting the floor. "If I had broken a leg," he grinned, "I suppose I'd have to sue the city, and the board of education."

ISOLATE ZONE, ORDER NATIONS TO 'KEEP OUT'

Nippon Note Renews Demand For Foreign Warships To Be Brightly Colored.

(By United Press)

SHANGHAI — Japanese naval authorities asked United States and other warships to evacuate immediately a specified zone of Yangtze river east of Hankow today and ordered foreign shipping generally out of the upper river until the Japanese decide it is "safe" for navigation.

A previous demand that foreign war ships be painted in distinctive colors—red was suggested—was repeated and it was asked also that they fly streamers from their mast heads to permit identification by Japanese airplane pilots.

Immediate Removal.

The new Japanese demands, made in a navy note to foreign authorities, asked that all foreign warships at once get out of the zone between Hwangshihkang, 60 miles east of Hankow, and Kiukiang, 80 miles farther down the river.

It was reported here that there was one United States gunboat at Kiukiang, and that a British gunboat also was there.

As for the Yangtze generally, the note asserted that it was closed, by Japanese order, to all foreign shipping above Wuhu, which is 60 miles up-river from Nanking, until such time the Japanese navy decided it was safe for foreign ships to proceed.

Explaining its renewal of the demand that foreign warships be painted in bright colors, and in addition fly streamers, the Japanese navy expressed regret at the previous refusal of foreign navy commanders to comply with the Japanese request. It said that experience had shown that Japanese pilots were unable to distinguish the flags painted on awnings of foreign ships without descending low enough to be endangered by Chinese anti-aircraft gun fire.

It was believed that renewal of the demand was connected directly with a severe—and apparently effective—Chinese airplane bombing campaign in the Yangtze valley, where Japanese troops with the co-operation of a big fleet of warships are trying to force their way to Hankow, emergency Chinese capital.

CITY GAZES AT CAR BUILT IN '99

One-Cylinder Oldsmobile, 2nd Ever Made, Displayed Here In Nation-Wide Tour.

Hundreds of Mansfielders gazed in amazement at a queer, chugging automobile rolling along the city's streets today.

With a curved front and the engine in a square box in the rear, the high-wheeled red "open job" moved briskly enough—on the level streets. But it had a little trouble on the hills.

The car, brought here by the Doug Miller Oldsmobile agency, North Diamond street, was the second Oldsmobile ever built, and it is 39 years old. Its license plate LC-1899 tells you the year it was built. The LC stands for Leon Case, Michigan secretary of state, who issued a special license for the antique car.

The 1899 model cost $1,200 when new, has one cylinder, steers with a pillar instead of a wheel, cranks at the side, has two forward speeds and one reverse, makes a maximum of 22 miles an hour, has a sight-feed oiling system (you supply the oil with an old-fashioned oil can) 30x3½ tires, steel wheels that look like buggy wheels, and kerosene lamps.

Its predecessor, the first Olds ever built, is in Smithsonian institute, at Washington. During 1899, the company turned out 425 of the cars, and continued to make the same model for four years.

The "merrie Oldsmobile" was brought here from Ashland, and will be taken to Akron this afternoon. It is being shown all around the country, but doesn't make the runs between cities under its own power.

STRIKE RIOT SUITS AGAINST REPUBLIC STEEL REACH 150

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND—Forty-four new actions arising from strike rioting last summer at Massillon brought to more than 150 today the damage cases filed against Republic Steel corporation, center of CIO's siege of little steel.

Common pleas court attaches said it was unlikely that any of the suits would be tried before Jan. 1, 1940, or two and a half years after the cited injuries occurred.

Nearly all the cases arose from four riots. Chronologically they were the 1937 Memorial day battle in Chicago which claimed 10 lives, and lesser riots at Youngstown, June 19, 1937, Massillon and Canton July 11 and 12, and in Cleveland July 26.

Massillon employes of the nation's third largest steel-making company have brought 81 lawsuits charging false arrest, and asking more than $700,000. Of the 44 filed yesterday, nearly all charged that Republic Steel corporation agents falsely arrested Massillon workers and kept them confined to jail in Canton and Massillon for periods of 24 to 42 hours.

Also named defendants in most of these suits were the Pennsylvania railroad; Charles E. Jonas, sergeant in the Pennsylvania railroad police; Carl W. Meyers, superintendent of Republic Massillon operations; William F. Henderson, chief of Republic police at Massillon; Gordon Hess, sales manager, and H. O. Curley, allegedly an agent of Republic.

The actions all were brought by the Cleveland law firm of Marvin Harrison and Homer Marshman, who represented Edward Lamb, Ohio CIO counsel, in the disbarment proceedings against Lamb at Portsmouth which recently were dismissed when Lamb's "regrets" of courtroom remarks were entered on the court record.

GEN. JOHNSON:

Farley and Landon Open Campaigns But Neither Offers Anything Exciting

—By HUGH S. JOHNSON

BETHANY BEACH, Del.—Jim Farley went nobly to bat for his boss over the air at the University of Virginia's annual forum. On the same day, Alf Landon was shelling him by radio from Council Bluffs, Ia. Both were keynote speeches for the congressional campaign.

Jim sees business leaders at last understanding what the government has been trying to do for them. Thus illumined, he imagines industrial big-shots at last rallying to the Third New Deal. It is not a "government of visionaries." The president is no more to be swayed by extremists of the left than by "financial giants." There is no danger to the system or any American institution. As usual in all recent administration speeches there is a catalogue of blessings, reforms and benefits to the mass of the people which the Third New Deal has brought.

Mr. Landon wants to know just what permanent blessings there are. He sees unemployment no less after five years of effort and 20 billions of spending. He fails to see any improvement in any of these economic conditions which make for continued prosperity, except such temporary spurts as can be purchased through spending, debt and taxes, leaving the underlying conditions worse when the spurt is over. He doesn't agree that what is being done is in accord with the American system and he does see danger to one American institution — liberal democracy—in favor of one-man government.

* * *

Mr. Landon aligns himself with the "yes-buttocs" by calling the old one which the president so much protests—"We all agree with your objectives but condemn your methods and policies." But Alf gives it a new and scorching twist—after five years. You haven't truly reached any of your objectives and the reason is that you have used the wrong methods and policies.

Except for that contribution there is nothing new and sparkling about either of these speeches.

It is difficult to question Alf's assertion that nothing fundamental in our halting economic system has been permanently repaired. No informed person can doubt that the trend is toward one-man government.

The trouble with Alf's speech is that it is sterile of suggestions. If you are going to say: "OK on objectives—thumbs down on methods" you should propose better methods. This Alf fails to do except in the vaguest generalities.

The trouble with Jim's effort is a doubt of his accuracy. The new cooperation he sees with business is the steel industry's liberalizing its price and basing-point system without wage cuts. The truth is that this was a ransom it paid at a pistol's point when some of its leaders were brought to Washington and told that if it didn't do [illegible] it would put it first on the operating table, take its intestines out and wrap them in a warm wet towel.

RULES ON POLICY

Court Frees Insurance Firm Of Liability In Estate Row.

An order dismissing the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada from liability in a suit to obtain possession of a $1,000 insurance policy issued by the company had been granted today in Richland county common pleas court.

The company, however, was instructed to deposit the $1,000 with the clerk of courts for distribution to claimants. The policy had been issued in 1929 on the life of John Morgan, Mansfield, who died recently.

Asserting that four persons and the Richland county commissioners might bring action to obtain a share of the insurance, the insurance firm had filed suit here against Frank S. Culp, executor of the Morgan estate; Theresa Morgan, former wife of Mr. Morgan; Frank Zoner, Nick Miu and the county commissioners.

Zones had been named beneficiary of the policy.

SUES FOR STATE COMPENSATION

Administrator of Shelby Estate Seeks Industrial Insurance.

Seeking the right to participate in the state industrial compensation fund for the death of Leonard Mynhier, late of Shelby, Hobert Mynhier, administrator of Mr. Mynhier's estate, today had filed an action in common pleas court aganist the State Industrial commission.

The petition states that Mr. Mynhier died in November, 1936, as the result of injuries suffered while employed by C. A. Black of Shelby, and that claims for compensation have been disallowed by the industrial commission.

In addition to industrial insurance, the plaintiff seeks funds for funeral expenses for Mr. Mynhier and attorney fees.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

NEW YORK—(AP)—The Book of Genesis records that before the flood "there were giants in the land."

Science thinks it has found some of them in Palestine. If science is right, then modern man is more gigantic, a more splendid physical specimen.

Sir Arthur Keith sketches the scientific story, in the British journal, Nature. He refers to the bones of men and women who lived 50,000 to 100,000 years ago in Palestine. He quotes Genesis on Giants and says:

"The fossil people we are now dealing with are almost worthy of such a name. The men were tall; four of them range in height from five feet eight inches to five feet eleven."

American studies of college men and women indicate that height and size are a matter of food. With the diets available long ago, these old Palestinians might truly rate as giants.

At any rate they were modern man's equals in several respects. Their brains were equal in size to ours, says Sir Arthur. There were less convolutions in their gray matter. But they could talk.

They were straight-legged. Chests showed they were long-winded. Sir Arthur infers they were good runners.

FISHERMAN LANDS BIKE

MAGIC CARPETS WHISK BARBARA TO ADVENTURE

Used Her Great Wealth to Avoid Public In Trains, Boats and Hotels.

This is the third of six articles on the life of Countess Barbara Hutton von Haugwitz-Reventlow by Helen Welshimer, well-known writer.

By HELEN WELSHIMER

NEW YORK CITY—The romantic dreams that Barabra Hutton, the little princess, had formulated in her ivory tower began to take on reality following her debut at the Ritz-Carleton hotel in New York City.

Magic carpets, woven of the golden threads of her fabulous fortune, whisked her away on a series of adventures in strange countries.

When she was a little girl she had spent much of her time abroad. But she went where she was taken. Now, with $45,000,000 at her disposal, she took charge of her own destiny.

She did not choose the inconvenience of travel in ordinary railroad cars. She bought or chartered private railroad cars and had them hitched to the rear of regular trains. She rode wherever her fancy took her. One bill for private cars amounted to $200,000.

Obsession of Privacy.

Privacy became to her not only a necessity in order to avoid the assaults of reporters and photographers, but an obsession, for in privacy she could continue her dreams undisturbed. Reality could not reach her.

Once she hired half a deck of a large ocean liner to insure herself against any possible intrusion. After all, her early up-bringing had told her to remain aloof. What the rental of the half of the deck cost never has been disclosed.

This search for privacy led Barbara Hutton to shun hotels as much as possible. In many places she maintained private houses. They were comfortable, of more or less splendor. On her duplex apartment in New York she once lavished a quarter of a million dollars.

The house where she now lives in London has become a showplace of this metropolis of great houses. When the countess bought it, following her marriage to Count Court Haugwitz-Reventlow, it was a huge remodeled house known as St. Dunstans. The late Otto Kahn, the New York banker, owned it formerly. It takes up half a block in Regent's park.

Permanent Home?

It is a cream colored house, and the trees are thick around it. Here, at last Barbara appeared ready to stay.

She made a gesture to her grandfather Woolworth's memory, too. She changed the house's name to Villa-Winfield. Winfield was Frank Woolworth's second name.

Prior to her marriages Barbara made a world tour. Once she went to Australia. She would hardly return from one far country until she would be off an another jaunt to a distant port. What was she seeking? She was going around the world when she first found romance. That first honeymoon was a glamorous tour from country to country. It was only after her second marriage that she consented to settle down in London.

Meantime, though, she was spending money for other things. There was jade for one. She always loved it. Many of her poems have been written about it. Somehow it appears to have satisfied a need for her.

The purchase of Ganna Walska's emerald collection for $1,200,000, in 1936, was another extravagant gesture. A flight on a magic carpet, so to speak.

But what of the shop-worn fingers that press the millions of keys on five and ten-cent store cash registers? Did Barbara care about them? The public wondered. Would she come out of her dream world?

A Few Gestures.

For awhile it seemed that she would. She made a few gestures of sympathy and the press began to wonder whether the break had come when the princess beautiful was to become the princess bountiful? Would Barbara Hutton develop social consciousness, people asked?

In 1932—two years after her debut—she appeared as the "Spirit of Adventure" in a charity pageant at Madison Square Garden for the Judson Health Center. There were a few other sympathetic moves on her part.

She liked New York's Casino and frequently was seen there.

But it seemed the spell of the ivory tower was too strong. People never came to know her well. Soon she would be off in pursuit of her dream again.

WASTE PRODUCT PAVES HIGHWAY

Substance Left Over From Refining Crude Oil Found Usable Road Material.

(By United Press)

TULSA, Okla. — From a hitherto little-used waste product left over from refining of crude oil may come the answer to today's congested arterial highways, according to the Western Petroleum Refiners association.

A new type road surfacing material, costing about one-eighth as much as concrete, has been developed from residue left in pre-heating stills. The residue, a form of asphalt, is mixed with a diluting agent, gravel and crushed stone to produce a long-wearing road surface.

The association said that employment of the bituminous surfacing material on relatively little-used secondary roads would divert a large amount of traffic to less congested routes.

Costs $3,000 Mile.

Roads built with the oil-base asphalt cost approximately $3,000 a mile to construct. Concrete costs approximately $25,000.

Bituminous surface roads are said to be skid-proof, wider, less tiring to the driver due to absence of jolting expansion joints, and safer because they taper off at the edges instead of falling off suddenly as do concrete highways.

Bituminous roads can be laid more rapidly than concrete, since speed of curing is determined by the diluting agent used to soften the asphalt to workable consistency. Use of rapid evaporating solvents results in a faster-curing road surface.

Increase in the use of asphalt for highway surfacing during the past five years has been marked. According to figures compiled by the Asphalt Institute, the increase in bituminous type roads has been 114 per cent, compared with an increase of 23 per cent in all other types.

Caleb—Life-Time Devotion

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 10 is Numbers 13:26-33; Joshua 14:6-15, especially Joshua 14:6-15,. the Golden Text being Numbers 13:30, "Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.")

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

"The next step in human progress is always an invasion of the territory of the impossible." Ten of the princes of the tribes of Israel, sent ahead to spy out the land of Canaan, brought back a very disheartening report about the promised land. "We are not able," they moaned, "to go up against the people; for they are stronger than we."

The Grasshopper Complex.

"And they brought up an evil report of the land which they had spied out unto the children of Israel . . . and all the people we saw in it are men of great stature . . . and we were in our own sight as grasshoppers, and so were we in their sight." When we admit that we are whipped we are whipped indeed! But Caleb and Joshua had no such idea of defeatism. They had the courage to bring in a minority report. The grasshopper complex that made the majority say "We are not able," they answered with a stout and emphatic "We are well able." "And Caleb stilled the people before Moses and said, Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it." Thank God for courageous minorities! They saw all the difficulties of giants and walled cities that terrified the majority, but they saw them not in comparison with their own weakness, but in comparison with the omnipotence of Jehovah, their God. Their faith begat courage in their hearts to attempt what the majority regarded as impossible. But the policy of fear prevailed and infected the whole nation and stopped the clock of progress for 38 years. It is not difficult for us to believe this story for we have been living through nine years of depression dragged out by lack of confidence born of fear of giants in the way. Recovery will come only when we recover our faith and our willingness to accept the partnership of God and venture with him.

No "Deadline."

Caleb's courage as a spy at 40 years of age, inspiring as it was, is exceeded by his courage at 85, when the tribes were settled in the land and, Caleb the aged, asks Joshua to assign to him as his inheritance the giant infested hill country of Hebron, the most forbidding portion of the promised land. He did not take the position that the nation owed him a pension or a living. He still had plenty of fight left in him. He recognized no "deadline" by reason of age: "Lo, I am this day fourscore and five years old. As yet I am as strong this day as I was in the day that Moses sent me; as my strength was then, even so is my strength now . . . Now therefore give me this hill-country whereof Jehovah spake in that day . . . It may be that Jehovah will be with me and I shall drive them out, as Jehovah spake." Caleb specialized in what others called the impossible. Others used two words, "not able," Caleb put those two into one and made himself "notable." Is not this the lesson we all need just now? "I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me."

SATURDAY, JULY 9, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and remember that drunken drivers THINK they're sober.

It may be presumed, by now, that even the most procrastinating of June graduates has sent thank-you notes for gifts received.

Robert Quillen draws this picture of economy: "Drowning wild life, trees and millions of acres of good farm land to develop electricity while feeding idle coal miners."

President and Mr. Roosevelt Ride Together.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT came to Ohio yesterday, and with him came Franklin D. Roosevelt, head of the Democratic party.

President Roosevelt came to participate in observance of the 150th anniversary of the settlement of the Northwest territory, at Marietta.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, head of the Democratic party, made the trip in order to relieve the President of the embarrassment of entering into state primary contests, which—naturally enough—would be outside the province of a president of the United States.

Between two such sterling Democrats, for instance, as Robert J. Bulkley and George White, contenders for the senatorial nomination, a Democratic president could express no preference, but, as head of the Democratic party, there was no reason why Franklin D. Roosevelt should refrain from making a reference to Senator Bulkley that can be stretched into an "endorsement."

In the matter of the Democratic gubernatorial contest a more delicate situation was faced and, after talking the matter over between themselves, President Roosevelt and Franklin D., head of the Democratic party, apparently decided to call it a draw and allow Martin L. Davey, present governor, and Charles Sawyer, Ohio's Democratic national committee chairman, to shift for themselves—with each given equal opportunity to board the special train and shake hands with President Roosevelt and with the head of the Democratic party. What Mr. Roosevelt, former New York governor, thought is, of course, not a matter of record.

Later in Kentucky, for a "Dear Alben" endorsement, and then on into the west goes the luxurious special train, carrying high-minded President Roosevelt and his politically-minded counterpart, Franklin D. Roosevelt, head of the Democratic party, who is not above bestowing a blessing on rubber-stamp supporters of New Deal policies and speaking out against candidates who have shown an inclination to think for themselves.

As has been previously mentioned by many people on various occasions, "Politics is a great game."

Michigan's 'Distasteful' Execution.

THERE was no question as to the guilt of the bandit who was hanged in Michigan yesterday.

He was one of two armed hoodlums who tried to rob a small-town bank. In the getaway, after wounding two bank officers, one bandit was shot to death. The other turned on an unarmed bystander and shot him to death.

Michigan has no death penalty—except for treason Murder in connection with an attempted bank robbery, however, made this a federal offense. A jury found the bandit guilty of murder and he was sentenced to death, under federal law.

Governor Murphy asked that the execution be transferred to another state, contending that the hanging would be "distasteful" to the people of Michigan. His request was not granted.

Thought of the widow and son of the victim of this killer, and contemplation of the murderers and bestial assailants of women and children who are being housed in Michigan prisons may be even more "distasteful" to the people of that state.

Do You Sign Whenever Asked?

WHAT'S your policy as to signing your name to a petition, a letter of recommendation, or anything else in which your approval or dissent is sought?

Ease with which some people can be induced to sign their name to almost anything presented to them, frequently accounts for candidacies of totally unfitted aspirants for some public office or for promotion of hare-brained ideas.

Glowing letters of recommendation are sometimes given to former employes after their discharge for incompetency, thus working an injustice on others who regard such letters as expressions of honest opinion.

Some folks will "follow the leader" by signing a petition in instances where they would withhold verbal endorsement of an individual or project.

Instances have been known in which signers of a petition have later asked the person or group to which it was addressed to disregard their signature, explaining that they signed it "only because they were asked, and didn't like to refuse."

Better policy would be to learn early to be careful what you sign.

Teachers to Take Look Around.

HERE is a summer college course which may sound like a vacation but which should be of real educational value. Fourteen normal school students and two professors will travel for sixty-two days, covering 12,500 miles, going from coast to coast and visiting twenty-six states. The special subjects to be studied will include national parks, dam and power projects, university campuses, laboratories, observatories, industrial centers and Hollywood movie lots.

One of the professors describes the course as an effort "to train intelligent teachers who will have a first-hand knowledge of American life as it is today." Students' fees of $500 to $600 will meet only a part of the actual cost. The deficit will be met by an educational foundation. There have been previous trips, including one to New England

It has long been customary for American teachers to travel abroad, to the benefit of themselves and their pupils. Such extensive and intensive trips in their own country, particularly in these times, should be of equal or greater importance than foreign travel. Americans need to know their own country better, its scenic wonders, its variety, its products, its customs, its people.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

INFLATIONIST speculators are beginning to wonder—again—whether there will be an inflationist joyride. President Roosevelt is speaking of a "broadened tax base" (which means persons like us) for next year, to take care of some of the expenditures being made now. Besides the social security tax steps up and brings in a huge sum. The government may be spending, but it is not borrowing overly much—and it is even talking of redeeming higher priced bond issues when business picks up.

In short, if we did not have public spending at the moment, we should have a strong deflationary draught on the part of the government.

Public spending now will be speeded up—and business is supposed to catch its cue from that. The money seeping through into business channels will help a bit to prime the pump or start the motor, but the outlook for freezing weather brought on by taxes may cause the motor to stall again.

It's a circle out of which we do not seem to know our way. Either we have inflation or deflation—but no balance. And under our socio-economic system, no matter how much money is poured into the trade stream, it all seems to come back again to the same place, with nothing accomplished.

LARGE BORROWING AHEAD

Large corporations — following the lead of U. S. Steel and Standard Oil—have been preparing prospective bond or preferred stock issues, for registration at the first indication of need of cash. Any concern with a large renovation project under way has gone ahead —at very favorable terms.

The large reservoirs of money guaranty ready purchase by the public and institutions. Indeed insurance companies have made purshases privately of entire issues to a large degree in the past few years, to put some of their large surplus funds to work.

These surplus funds of insurance companies now are believed to total nearly a billion dollars.

Banks, in the meantime, still report a decline in corporation borrowings. It is no wonder—money can be obtained more reasonably through public issues.

LO, THE FARMER

Many farmers are finding this season a difficult one — at least farmers with small acreages. Such a farmer and his family ordinarily do all the work. But this year, in various areas, many things have ripened simultaneously. And no help can be obtained.

Such farmers say they cannot afford to pay more than $1 and $1.25 a day—and men will not leave the WPA for that.

The next question is: Could there be a WPA for farm work, with the government paying half, the farmer half? The answer, from the farmer is: Impracticable. Thus he tries to get by alone.

Senator Burke's Statement.

Editor News-Journal:

On the front page of your issue of Tuesday, July 5, you carried a story quoting Senator Burke of Nebraska as saying that 80% of the settlements effected between unions and employers in controversies which fall under the jurisdiction of the National Labor Relations Board, were in the nature of "shotgun weddings."

To this statement of the senator's opinions you added an item recalling to your readers that the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, of Mansfield, recently settled a labor board controversy with the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, Local 711, without formal hearings.

No one contests the right of Senator Burke to hold and express opinions on the NLRB, nor your right to print these opinions, even though they are at variance with the opinions, delivered in verdicts of the 8-and 9-0 variety, by the United States Supreme Court. We do feel, however, that the addition, without comment, of an item of local news to a general dispatch from Washington, carried an implication that the local settlement fell into the senator's classification of "shotgun weddings."

Your readers must have noticed that previous accounts of this settlement, which you carried in your news columns, stressed the voluntary and friendly nature of the action. Both the company and ourselves expressed mutual satisfaction with the agreement reached. We assert to you and your readers that any implication to the contrary is without foundation in fact.

Gettysburg's 'Turning Point' Fame

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — The welkin is still echoing and re-echoing to sounds of the last reunion of the Blue and the Gray at Gettysburg, Pa.

All right. It was a very inspiring, pathetic, patriotic, historic occasion.

Nevertheless, military men, somewhat sub rosa (for none of them wished to be suspected of an inclination to throw cold water on the affair), persistently have asked all along:

"Why Gettysburg in particular?"

REAL TURNING POINT.

It is agreed that Gettysburg was a big, bloody, dreadful battle, but so, professional soldiers remark, was Antietam.

The former, war department strategists argue, was no more a turning point than the latter in the conflict between the states. The real turning point, according to experts, was Grant's success at Vicksburg. Vicksburg, however, is comparatively little advertised.

Why Gettysburg for so great a splurge, rather than Vicksburg or even Antietam?

GETTYSBURG FAME.

The answer is easy enough.

What publicized Gettysburg was Lincoln's speech there — a speech that was unrecognized at the time. Nobody ever made a speech of any consequence at Vicksburg or Antietam.

And no northerner, anyway, ever thought of making a speech at Bull Run.

PAUL REVERE'S RIDE.

It is something like Paul Revere's ride.

Paul's ride had precious little to do with the outcome of the American Revolution, but it has gone down in history as about that era's most important event, because of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow's poetical record of it.

For that matter, the battle of Bunker Hill was not fought on Bunker Hill; it was fought on Breed's Hill—nearby, but not on Bunker. Journalism of the time erred by a substantial fraction of a mile. Records prove it. But who ever heard of Breed's Hill!

SHERIDAN'S RIDE.

Coming ahead to Civil war days — Phil Sheridan's famous ride!

Phil was at Winchester. He wanted to pay a visit in Washington. It was a social affair, but he was in a hurry. The battle was all over before he arrived at his designation. Between the battle and his gallop there was no connection.

However, George B. Read wrote his famous "Sheridan's Ride."

It makes you thrill to this day.

There is a beautiful piece of sculpture in Washington, representing "Phil" on his memorable trip. It seems he was here only to pay a friendly visit, entirely unconnected with the war.

DEBUNKER

I borrow, to considerable an extent, from George W. Stimpson, an investigator into this historical dope, and an author of several books on the subject.

He is an iconoclast of the first water.

But he does get down to facts.

For example, democracy is supposed to date to the moment when King John of England is said to have come to terms with the English barons at Runnymede in 1215 — and signed Magna Charta, democracy's basis.

But Stimpson proves that King John could not write.

Henry Ford is on record to the effect that history is "mostly lies."

Or images in poetry and speeches, we may add.

When Do You Make Up Your Mind?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU must do something—take one step or another—so you make up your mind. Or—do you? Is that decision really reached, then?

You think it is. You think that you make up your mind afresh every time you face a new problem. But you don't.

YOU ARE ALWAYS MAKING UP YOUR MIND.

AND EACH SEEMINGLY NEW DECISION IS COLORED AND SHAPED BY ALL YOUR FAST DECISIONS.

You are always making up your mind; and most of the time you don't realize it.

Every thought you think, every opinion you express or listen to, every deed, however trivial, however easily forgotten, helps you make up your mind.

FOR NOTHING IS EVER FORGOTTEN, NOTHING IS REALLY TRIVIAL. EVERY ACT IN YOUR LIFE LEAVES ITS MARK UPON YOU, FOR GOOD OR EVIL.

This morning you shirked a chore. It wasn't much of a chore. It's neglect did not affect your day's program, and no one knew of that neglect—so you think it didn't matter.

But it did matter!

Tomorrow or next week or next year you are going to face a really important problem.

THAT LITTLE NEGLECT TODAY IS GOING TO MAKE IT EASIER FOR YOU TO RUN AWAY FROM THAT PROBLEM.

Each time you give way to laziness or cowardice—DON'T PRETEND

Each time you tell a "white lie," or do some malicious little act, or think a filthy thought, or make an excuse for yourself, or pretend to be something you aren't—

Each time you are making up your mind for all the rest of your life.

Good people do not become good by simple righteous acts. Bad people do not become bad by isolated vicious decisions.

Good people become good as a result of a multitude of unconsidered, seemingly forgotten, decent deeds.

Bad people become bad as a result of countless cowardly, dishonest, greedy, vulgar, venemous acts, each one of which seemed trivial and excusable at the time it was committed.

"Well, that isn't a very hopeful theory," you say, "for what chance have I to make any progress if I am bound by all the fool things I did in the past?"

That's an easy one to answer. If the "fool things" of the past can bind you, so can the fine things of the present.

You are making up your mind as much today as you were ten years ago. You aren't making it up quite as freely, for you are carrying the mark of all those old decisions and evasions; but you're only marked; you're not paralyzed. You are still a free man. You can still do the things your better self wants to do—be the man your better self wants to be.

No matter how badly beaten or battered you are, you can still cry:

"I am the master of my fate, I am the captain of my soul."

What's Happened?

A Week-End Summary of Current Events.

EDIT PGE — SATURDAY — WHAT'S HAPPENED . . . . NEWS 75 years old, about the battle of Gettysburg, was reviewed in America's press this week, and at Gettysburg there was a reunion of 2,000 veterans of the blue and gray "with malice toward none, with charity for all."

"The challenge," said President Roosevelt, "is always the same—whether ach generation facing its own circumstances can summon the practical devotion to attain and retain that greatest good for the greatest number which this government of the people was created to ensure....

"We are near to winning this battle. In its winning and through the years may we hve by the wisdom and the humanity of the heart of Abraham Lincoln."

Queen's Namesake.

From Gettysburg's 75th anniversary, the President dashed back to Washington for four days' "homework," then turned to the Northwest Territory's 150th anniversary.

After the Revolutionary war, an "Ohio Company" formed in Boston by Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island veterans got a tract of land on the Ohio river. And a settlement called Marietta, in honor of the French Queen Marie Antoinette, was established there in the summer of 1788. So Marietta, Ohio, celebrated this week.

From Marietta, the President's California-bound train was routed through Kentucky, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Colorado and Utah—a course enabling Mr. Roosevelt to combine political business with pleasure.

Hamilton On Jefferson.

The University of Virginia, founded by Thomas Jefferson, is host each summer to an Institute of Public Affairs. Its July 4th headliners were Republican Chairman John D. M. Hamilton and New Deal Sen. Claude Pepper.

There's "hardly a page" in the 20 volumes Jefferson wrote, said Hamilton, that doesn't contain "an indictment of some aspect of what the New Deal has done."

"Everyone knows," Pepper retorted, "that Jefferson's passion for liberty would no more compromise with economic despotism than with political despotism."

It was Hamilton's second speech in Dixie within two weeks. "There is today no insurmountable barrier," he thinks, "between the real Democrats of the South and the Republican party."

Landon 'Liberalism.'

Answering President Roosevelt's recent plea for "the help of all," Alf Landon broadcast from Council Bluffs, Ia., Wednesday that the business depression is "purely political" and that Republicans object, not to the aspirations, but to the methods of the President.

True liberals, said Landon, would not centralize power in one man's hands, undermine the Supreme Court by irregular short cuts or favor a loose fiscal policy. "Let Mr. Roosevelt.... realize that the greatest peril to social reform is financial recklessness....eliminate waste and extravagance...cease his nagging attacks on business...make an effort to dissolve monopoly instead of fostering it....forswear all further attempts to tamper with the Supreme Court....put a stop to the use of WPA money to buy votes," Landon continued. "In short, let Mr. Roosevelt only practice what he preaches and we will not only co-operate with him—we will fight shoulder to shoulder with him."

Looking Ahead.

Political forecasters and their forecasts this week included:

President Roosevelt—The country wants and will get government reorganization.

Sen. M. M. Logan—Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Vice President Garner will seek a third term; Garner will be "mighty hard to beat" if he seeks the presidential nomination.

At Home

Labor Statistics.

The national labor board celebrated its third birthday this week by announcing that, as of June 1, it had closed 11,180 of 14,832 cases brought before it—55 per cent settled by employer-worker agreements, 24 per cent withdrawn, 16 per cent dismissed, 5 per cent sent to the courts. Birthday presents included a Civil Liberties Union statement noting "the Supreme Court's support of the board's action in every case which has come before it."

In London, where a U. S. commission will study how Britain adjusts labor disputes, these figures were announced: In 1936 the United Kingdom had 806 trade disputes involving 315,000 workers, the U. S. had 2,171 disputes involving 788,648 workers. But the ratio was about even since the U. S. has roughly three times as many people as Britain.

Orator and Critic.

Sharp-jawed Deputy WPA Administrator Aubrey Williams' recent recommendation to a WPA union that relief recipients keep their "friends" in power was deemed "unfortunate" by the senate campaign funds committee headed by Sen. Morris Sheppard.

Subsequently Williams advised the American Youth Congress at Cleveland: "You must organize to get power into the hands of the workers." In making this declaration, Sheppard commented this week, Williams was "withing his rights."

Dr. Morgan Sues.

Dr. Arthur E. Morgan was appointed a TVA director for a term not expiring until 1942. His friends contended, when President Roosevelt ousted him last March, that the president was exceeding his rights. And now tall, gaunt Dr. Morgan has brought suit, in Knox county, Tenn., for pay and recognition "as a member and chairman" of the TVA board.

Gunning for Giants.

Chairman of the monopoly investigating committee, girding for action, is Wyoming's energetic Democratic Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, 54, ex-journalist and ex-assistant postmaster general.

Last winter he and Idaho's veteran Republican Sen. William E. Borah argued that two birds, the predatory monopolist and the chiseling employer, culd be hit with one stone, a law requiring interstate-business corporations to have U. S. licenses.

But O'Mahoney says he will not try to dictate to his fellow investigators.

Hollywood Hypnotist.

Robert A. Gilbert, 49, hypnotist, is known in vaudeville as "The Great Gilbert."

When Mrs. Marie Colombos, 23, an expectant monther, died recently her husband accused him of having cast a spell over her. "The Great Gilbert" denied it, but admitted, according to Glendale, Calif., police, that he had been present. Mrs. Colombos, he said, collapsed while lifting a heavy daybed and he had been unable to revive her. Baffled investigators ordered a second autopsy this week.

Violence Continued.

While the Harlan County, Ky., anti-union conspiracy trial continued this week, one defendant was arrested for shooting a man and another defendant was shot and killed.

Abroad

To Restrain Spain's War.

Bigger news about Spain came from London than from Spain early this week:

(1) British shippers learned that Insurgent President Franco was willing to let them land legitimate cargoes, safely, in Almeria.

(2) At long last, the 26-nation non-intervention committee completed a $13,750,000 plan to leave the Spanish war to the Spaniards by shipping foreigners home.

Almeria is the loyalist port, 150 miles east of Gibraltar, almost directly south of Madrid, that Germany's navy bombarded last summer to avenge an attack on a nazi ship. Franco's offer to let the British use it was made after London had protested and consulted Rome regarding attacks on English ships.

British shipowners said Almeria was not a satisfactory port.

The main war zone this week was in northeast Spain, where insurgents were advancing along highways leading to Valencia.

Help Needed.

Nobody knows how many people would leave Hitlerland if they could. Some people say 1,000,000 would, and one leader of Austrian exiles thinks 4,500,000 want out.

U. S. immigration laws will permit only 27,370 of them to enter this country next year. And U. S. officials think South America and British Dominions should be the principal havens.

John Bull Gets His.

Germany sells more to Britain than she buys from Britain. But in dealing with the U. S., Germany buys more than she sells.

This put John Bull in a better position than Uncle Sam to make Germany recognize Austria's debts. And John Bull did, as regards Austria's debts to him last week-end.

More Floods.

Last week's floods left more than 860 Japanese dead, injured or missing, and new downpours this week widened the area of distruction, and caused more than 300 additional deaths.

Bloody Holy Land.

A bomb exploded in Haifa's business district, police allegedly fired on crowds, and 23 persons died Wednesday in renewed Arab-Jewish rioting throughout the Holy Land.
